Near Collision With Police Car Alerts Unsuspecting Officer

A 22-year-old Novato man was charged with burglary yesterday after allegedly taking $54 worth of food from Rayburn's Grocery at 850 Grant Street, Novato, and from a wholesale food truck parked near the store.

The arrest was made at 5:45 p.m. after the suspect, Dale Patrick Barnard of 713 Olive Street, led a patrolman on a high-speed chase on Highway 101, ending on Elm Avenue in Novato where he surrendered to Officer Louis Robinette.

Robinette today gave the following account of the incident:

"After nearly having a head-on collision with a speeding 1954 pickup truck which was going east in the west-bound lane on Grant Avenue, I turned the patrol car around and gave chase.

"The truck was going nearly 90 miles an hour on Railroad Avenue and 100 miles an hour on Lamont Avenue before it turned onto Highway 101.

"The driver apparently thought he had lost me in the highway traffic and turned off the freeway onto Diablo Avenue. He was doing about 45 miles per hour on Front Street and it was not until we both got onto Elm Avenue that he saw me."

Robinette said the driver, identified as Barnard, stopped his truck and walked over to the patrol car, saying "I did it."

"At the time, I didn't know what he was talking about. I was chasing him only because he was speeding and had run a stop sign on 101," Robinette said.

At the police station, Edward Joseph Fuller of Cotati, an employee of Rayburn's market, identified Barnard as the man whom he had seen taking food from the store's shelves and putting it under his coat.

Robinette said Barnard admitted making four trips into the market where he concealed food in his clothing and returned to his truck parked outside to dispose of it.

Barnard also reportedly admitted taking food from a truck belonging to the Ritz Food Co. of Santa Rosa which was parked outside the market.

Police said seven dozen boiled hams, a case of margarine, two pounds of tomatoes, and small quantities of milk, bacon, eggs, hand cream, lettuce and cottage cheese were found in the back of Barnard's truck.

Bail was set at $1,650.

First Russ Slap At Peking Test

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet bloc charged today other nations may seize Peking's atomic test as a pretext for spreading nuclear arms. It was Moscow's first open criticism of the test.

The criticism, written by World Peace Council President John Bernal of the University of London, was distributed as a loose page insert in the November issue of "Problems of Peace and Socialism," a magazine printed in 18 languages with editorial offices in Prague.

Western observers said publication of the article, which originally was an Oct. 27 declaration, indicated that the talks between Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai and Kremlin leaders registered little progress in sealing the Sino-Soviet split.

Boat Accident Aids Recovery Of Lost Auto

It only took a few seconds to get Shelley W. Bieber's car into the San Rafael canal early this week, but it took five days and a minor boat accident to get it out.

Mrs. Bieber was rescued from the canal Monday night after she drove her Mercury sedan off a launching dock into the water, then clung to a dock and screamed for help for nearly an hour.

Police could nee no trace of the car in the muddy water that rainy night, so they agreed to wait until the tide went down Tuesday.

They were unable to locate it then, either.

The search continued all this week with no success. Then, at 2 a.m. today, boat owner Stanley E. Giffin of 36 Jefferson Avenue, Santa Venetia, felt his cabin cruiser bump something as he pulled into the canal.

It was Mrs. Bieber's car.

With the aid of skindiver Robert Marcucci of the Marin County Sheriff's Office, the D and S Garage of San Rafael pulled the car out this morning.

Jack Frost Arrives Along With Sun

Jack Frost made a visit to Marin County last night, bringing below freezing temperatures to several areas.

The lowest temperature for the night in the county was recorded in Woodacre, 29 degrees. It was 31 degrees, one degree below freezing, at 7:30 a.m. today at Point Reyes Station.

The five-day storm which hit the area last Sunday had a final flurry in San Rafael at 1:40 p.m. yesterday with a short hail storm. Hail also fell in Novato about 3 p.m.

Low temperatures last night were recorded in Novato, 35 degrees; Mill Valley and San Rafael, 36 degrees; San Anselmo, 37 degrees; and Fairfax, 40 degrees.

Bright Object Just A Balloon

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—People from San Francisco to San Jose today flooded newspaper offices with reports of a bright, shiny object over San Francisco Bay.

The object turned out to be an Air Force experimental balloon, from Chico, on its way down to earth after developing a leak.

It was expected to land about 15 miles southeast of San Jose.

CONANT READIES EDUCATION BLAST

New Book Due Out Monday Will Call For 'Radical' New National Policy

By ERWIN KNOLL
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON—Dr. James B. Conant, the one-man idea factory for the nation's schools, is about to upset the comfortably complacent education establishment again.

Monday McGraw-Hill will publish Conant's latest book, his seventh since 1959. The new work is called "Shaping Education Policy," and like several of its predecessors — notably "The American High School Today" (1959), "Slums and Suburbs" (1961) and "The Education of American Teachers" (1963)—it is likely to touch off arguments that will not soon subside.

It was announced only last week that five colleges and universities in New York state will try to put into effect the controversial teacher training reforms proposed by Conant a year ago. His thesis—that state certification requirements, with their stress on methodology rather than effective classroom performance, are obsolete—has not been warmly welcomed by the influential professional organizations in the teaching field.

Conant's newest proposal, which he himself describes as "radical," is also certain to meet with powerful resistance. In brief, he suggests that the 50 states, or at least a considerable portion of them, join together in an interstate compact to promote a cohesive nationwide policy on education.

At present, says the former president of Harvard University, education policy in the United States is shaped "by the more or less haphazard interaction" of the leaders of public school teachers, administrators and professors of education; state educational authorities; a multitude of state colleges and universities; private institutions of higher education, and the various federal agencies which

Local Agency Board 'Has Awesome Power'

By FRANK FARRARA

The power of Local Agency Formation Commissions was challenged yesterday at an Assembly Interim Committee on Municipal and County Governments hearing at the Marin Civic Center.

Mayor John J. Meehan of Pinole, Contra Costa County, urged the committee to "consider carefully that the Legislature has vested awesome power in a five-man board of laymen subject to human frailties and arbitrary decisions."

He suggested that the committee review the motivations and intentions of the Legislature in creating the commissions and "explain and publicize why annexations, district formation, etc., are now scrutinized by the absolute, decisive five-man board."

The law states what factors a commission shall consider before rendering a decision, Meehan said. "But it does not uniformly define how they shall do it, or what weight to assign each factor, or what their basic objectives should be."

He said this "renders shapeless any effort to appeal a decision."

Charles Denny, Redding city councilman and chairman of the Shasta County LAFC, urged that there be greater uniformity in the exercise of power by commissions.

"We are concerned that the power vested in the local agency formation commission is absolute," he said. Nowhere in the act creating the LAFC "do we observe language which assures the slightest degree of uniformity in standards and procedures among the various commissions."

The committee also heard a plea from Michael Mahoney, representing the Irrigation Districts Assn. of California, to remove special districts whose principal function is distribution

Cache Of Money In Embezzlement Case Is Revealed

SAN FRANCISCO—A 72-year-old San Rafael man, testifying in behalf of a Greenbrae woman standing trial for alleged embezzlement in federal court, dropped what turned out to be a long-fused bomb yesterday.

Walter A. Midnight of 806 E Street, a retired sugar factory worker, said that he had $23,000 in cash in a tin box at his home and part of it was money that Mrs. Clark was supposed to have taken from his wife.

Midnight's testimony took just about everyone by surprise. Judge Alfonson Zirpoli asked Midnight to produce the money in court when trial resumes Monday.

Midnight was reluctant and the judge said he did not have to bring in the money if he objected on constitutional grounds—that is if Midnight felt he might be incriminating himself.

The witness said he would produce the money and the judge ordered two deputy U.S. marshals to accompany the man to his small San Rafael home to pick it up.

WALTER A. MIDNIGHT
Arrives without marshals

However on the way home, Midnight stopped off to see his attorney William O. Weissich. Evidently the attorney persuaded the deputy marshals that their services were no longer needed. He also evidently advised Midnight not to produce the money, at least not last night.

When Midnight arrived at his home at 7 p.m., a good two hours after leaving federal court, he was unescorted. Two FBI agents waiting to greet him there were told that "the mar-

Synanon Planning $675,000 'Campus'

Preliminary plans for a $675,000 "campus-type" development which would house 300 narcotics addicts on the old Marconi property in Marshall were revealed by Synanon Foundation yesterday in Marshall.

Architect Ellis Kaplan described the plans at a meeting at Synanon House in Marshall. A Synanon director, Jack Hurst, said that the foundation will launch a six-month publicity and fund-raising campaign in an effort to raise the money.

In the meantime, however, Synanon has no intention of being pushed into applying for a use permit at its present location in the Marconi hotel building by "local hate groups and bigots," said Hurst.

"We're getting tired of excounty supervisors sounding off as spokesmen for the people of West Marin," said Hurst in a reference to Supervisor George Ludy, defeated on Nov. 3 in district Four by Thomas T. Storer.

(Ludy remains supervisor until Jan. 1, 1965.)

Synanon attorney Daniel L. Garrett Jr. explained the foundation's position this way at yesterday's meeting:

"It has always been our position that a Synanon House like

Kuchel Suggested For Governor

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—George Christopher, former San Francisco mayor, suggested yesterday that Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, a Republican, run for governor of California.

Christopher held a news conference on his return from a world trip.

California, he said, "needs a traditional, moderate candidate" for governor. He added:

"I think Kuchel would win. Then, he could appoint another Republican senator, and we wouldn't be losing a senator—we'd be gaining a governor."

Carolyn Mignini, 17-year-old daughter of a clothing cutter, was chosen as the winner last night before a national television audience.

If Carolyn ever believed that stuff about 13 being an unlucky number, she doesn't any more.

She triumphed over the 52 other entrants on Friday the 13th — with her mother sitting in the 13th seat of the 13th row in the audience.

She shattered a solid contest tradition when she was announced the winner and Texas Gov. John Connally stepped forward to present her with a bouquet of roses.

She didn't cry.

Brown, Murphy Agree On Problems

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Republican Sen.-elect George Murphy and Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown met in San Francisco yesterday with the aim of establishing a relationship that would benefit the state.

Murphy

Said Brown at a news conference:

"Although we unquestionably differ on a great many things, I'm going to try my level best to work with the senator."

Murphy said:

"Once a man is elected, his duty is not to the Republicans or the Democrats, or the independents, but to all the people of the state."

Brown and Murphy agreed that the state has problems involving farm labor, water, defense contracts and urban renewal.

Brown said he probably would appoint Murphy to succeed Salinger if the senator resigned before his term expired.

Soviet Mission Car Fired On By GI Guard

HEIDELBERG, Germany (AP) — A Soviet military mission sedan was fired on by an American guard when it failed to obey orders to halt, U. S. Army Headquarters in Europe announced here today.

The incident occurred Wednesday when the car approached a restricted U. S. military area near Nuernberg, the Army said.

The vehicle's two occupants, a Soviet colonel and an enlisted man driver, were detained for about seven hours and then released.

The Soviet military liaison mission is attached to U. S. headquarters. The United States has a similar mission attached to the Soviets in East Germany.

U. S. Army headquarters has protested to the Soviet military liaison mission, located in Frankfurt, that the Soviet car violated a well-marked restricted military area.

The Soviet sedan entered the restricted area at around 1:20 p.m. Wednesday despite signs in English, Russian and German warning against trespassing.

"When a warning shot was fired into the air, the vehicle attempted to leave . . ." The Army said "A member of the guard then fired at the vehicle's left rear tire."

The statement did not say whether the car was hit.

Water Directors Order Bids For Utility Building

Directors of the Marin Municipal Water District yesterday agreed to ask for bids on a new utility building to be built at the rear of the district headquarters in Corte Madera.

Bids will be opened at the next meeting of directors at 1:30 p.m. Dec. 9. The job is estimated at $100,000.

Chief Engineer and General Manager William Seegar said the new facility will replace the present maintenance building and yard in San Rafael which must be moved to make way for highway work.

Directors yesterday also awarded an $80,000 labor contract to Wilson and Chadwick Construction Co. of San Rafael for work to be done in rehabilitation of service lines in 19 areas of the district.

Seeger said with equipment purchases and other costs, the job will total about $175,000. The firm submitted the lowest of eight bids opened yesterday.

HEARING

of a water supply, from jurisdiction of Local Agency Formation Commissions.

"The direction of water development and distribution system planning is important enough to be left in the hands of elected public officials and professional experts who have but a single objective, supplying water rapidly and economically to those who request the services," he said.

John H. Plumb, assistant secretary of the East Bay Municipal Utility District, said that someone representing the interests of special districts should be a member of each commission.

"Cities and special districts are equally affected by these procedures and it seems to us grossly unfair to give the cities two-fifths of the representation and special districts no representation at all," Plumb said.

He opposed any change in the law which would give commissions the power to initiate annexations because this "would be to bypass the elected legislative bodies of special districts."

The Marin County commission favors a change that would give it the power to initiate annexations.

The hearing was the last of three held by the Assembly committee on evaluation of LAFC operations and suggestions for legislative changes. Its report will be prepared next month, chairman John Knox (D-Richmond) said.

U.C. Group Criticizes Suspensions

BERKELEY (AP) — An Academic Senate faculty committee yesterday criticized the Berkeley campus administration for suspending eight University of California students.

The students drew suspensions Sept. 30 for violations of campus rules banning certain political activities on campus.

The action became one of the rallying causes for several thousand demonstrators and onlookers who jammed in front of the administration building.

The five-member faculty committee in a report recommended the suspensions of six of the students be lifted and their records toned down to read "censured."

The report said that the other two students, Mario Savio and Art Goldberg of the Free Speech Movement, should be reinstated immediately since they have served six-week suspensions.

North State Senate Loss Is Forecast

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Northern California will lose 15 state Senate seats to Southern California under a reapportionment plan which the legislature will take up as its first order of business in January, Sen. Stephen P. Teale said yesterday.

Speaking before the California Manufacturers Assn., the Calaveras County Democrat said Los Angeles, Orange, San Diego, Riverside and possibly Imperial and San Bernardino counties will get new state senate representation under reapportionment as ordered by the U.S. Supreme Court.

If the State Assembly fails to pass a reapportionment bill, said Teale, the Senate will probably pass it anyway and "it will be submitted to the people in the form of a constitutional amendment without approval of the Assembly."

Teale, who heads a Senate committee studying the problem, said California should "work out the problem" itself, rather than "have someone come in and cut up the state."

Marinwood Plan Is On Agenda

The Marin County Planning Commission will consider a proposed amendment to the Marinwood Master Plan calling for less density in hillside areas at a meeting at 9 a.m. Monday at the Civic Center.

The Marinwood Homeowners Assn. has urged large lots in the hillside areas as yet undeveloped.

The commission also will review a tentative map of Marinwood Terracea, a 16-acre subdivision, which was opposed by the Homeowners Association at the Nov. 2 meeting.

The commission also will have a hearing on proposed ordinance amendments creating large lot controls, average density controls and a resort-commercial zone.

Rattle Tied To Sonic Boom

A blast, believed to be a sonic boom, shook some areas of the San Geronimo Valley at 4:10 p.m. yesterday.

Mrs. Agnes Vincilione of Barranca Road said her home shook and dishes rattled. She thought it might have been an earthquake.

The county fire station in Woodacre where the blast was also felt, reported it as a "probable sonic boom."

Brown Orders Highway Work

MARYSVILLE (UPI)—Gov. Edmund G. Brown announced yesterday that workers would begin at once to open the new Interstate 80 over Donner Summit.

Meanwhile, highway engineers and contractors met here to figure out how to do it.

Brown, in an announcement from his Sacramento office, said "Legal obstacles to opening the new super highway have been cleared away, and snow removal will be started right away."

He said highway department officials reported it might take another week to get the highway cleared of snow and ready for traffic "if no further weather problems are encountered."

SYNANON

the one at Marshall qualifies as a single family. Legally we have been upheld by courts throughout the United States, including California."

The Marin County ordinance in question, said Garrett, defines a family as one or more persons occupying premises and living as a single housekeeping unit, as distinguished from a group occupying a boarding house, lodging house or hotel.

An appellate court decision two years ago in Atherton upheld the Synanon stand, Garrett said. Justice Tobriner held at that time that there was no requirement that any relationship by consanguinity or otherwise exists between the "family" and that there is no numerical requirement involved either, said Garrett.

Garrett said that the wording of the Atherton ordinance and the Marin County ordinance in question are essentially identical.

There are 55 to 60 addicts currently living at the Marshall Synanon House.

Garrett, who said he will ask to appear before the Marin County Supervisors Tuesday to explain the Synanon position, said that the legal position of the group makes it unnecessary to apply for a use permit.

"By applying for a use permit, we would be admitting that we are in violation of the zoning ordinance, and we're not," said Garrett.

The lawyer emphasized that when the "campus-type" community has been planned, the foundation will then apply to the county for the necessary permits.

The $675,000 development described by architect Kaplan would consist of two dormitory buildings with classroom space, a combination dining hall and garage, and a classroom and studio building with some office space.

Garrett said that when final plans for a planned community of 5,000 addicts are completed, the foundation will apply for necessary permits also.

Hurst announced at yesterday's meeting that a group of eight doctors and dentists from Marin have agreed to provide the residents of Synanon House with free medical and dental care.

Bolinas Utility Report Given

The Bolinas Public Utility District Board received a supplemental report last night from Kennedy Engineering of San Francisco on sewage facility requirements in the district.

The supplement expands on some point of the land study section of the original report. The board members will study the report and discuss it next week. They are preparing for a Dec. 17 appearance before the Bay Region Water Pollution Control Board.

The water pollution body will set requirements for sewage disposal facilities in the Bolinas district.

Hildreth, of 1012 Los Gamos Road, was accused of pulling Joseph J. Carusone of 290 Cobblestone Drive from the latter's car, knocking him down, and then kicking him.

Carusone told officers Hildreth's car had struck his earlier as he started to pull off a Redwood Highway frontage road.

Co-Exist Peacefully? Countess Thinks Not

By ROBERT M. COPPOCK

Countess Alexandre Tolstoy last night discussed religion, communism in Russia and her father's works in a wide-ranging speech to an audience at Dominican College.

She said students in Russia are now allowed to study her father's novels but not his philosophical works because he speaks of religion in them.

But, she said, her father was never particularly interested in his great novels, "War and Peace" and "Anna Karinina."

She quoted from Leo Tolstoy's diary, showing that he set high moral standards for himself on one day and the next day recorded that he'd broken the standards.

"He was a very humble man," she said, "and he was a great sinner."

He did not like his fame, she added. He compared a man to a fraction. The numerator is the man's qualities, the denominator is his self confidence. If the denominator is larger than the numerator, the man is not worth much, she explained.

She said her father has been called an atheist and a conservative and a revolutionary but in fact he was a very religious man who was always searching for the meaning of life. He opposed socialism although he wanted to better the life of the peasants and disapproved of the repressions of the Czar, the countess said.

Discussing present day Russia, she said she did not believe the West and Communist societies could or should co-exist peacefully. She also said she saw no real difference between the communist philosophies in China and Russia.

She said Nikita S. Khrushchev was telling the truth when he described the Russian-Chinese dispute as a squabble between husband and wife.

But the most terrible thing happening in Russia, she feels, is the government's action against religion. She said that children are not allowed to go to church and that very few churches are left.

"But it does not work. Fifty million of the Russian people are still religious," she commented. "Literature that comes out of Russia today shows a spiritual revival."

She said the peasants of Russia have always been very religious and this is the reason for the continuation of religion in spite of governmental suppression.

During the question and answer period after her speech, she opposed United States' sale of wheat to Russia and said agreements with satellite countries are "just destroying the freedom of the West and the world. Americans underestimate the communists. They don't know how bad communism is."

shals went home." The agents decided to leave also.

Weissich would say nothing about the case today.

Midnight is the husband of Mrs. Mary Ellen Lobree Midnight, 83, who lives in a San Rafael rest home.

Prosecutor James J. Brosnahan has charged that Mrs. Clark, in her capacity as assistant treasurer for the San Francisco Federal Savings and Loan Assn., took $17,000 on one occasion and $7,500 on another from Mrs. Midnight's account and $5,500 from the account of Miss Zenta Weber, 74, a retired San Francisco nurse.

Midnight yesterday produced a promissory note from Mrs. Clark for $7,500, but Brosnahan charged in his cross-examination that this was not delivered to Midnight until Dec. 23, 1963, after the FBI had started investigating the case.

Mrs. Clark, who was indicted by a federal grand jury in San Francisco in April, is represented by San Francisco attorney Sol Abrams.

FBI Agent John Deardorf said that Midnight never mentioned a promissory note or the cash during the investigation last December.

Midnight said on the stand yesterday that he and his wife loaned the money to Mrs. Clark so she could build a room on her house.

He said he had complete trust in Mrs. Clark and said she was a good friend.

Poison Case Figure Dies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 40-year-old child psychologist wanted in the slow poisoning of his wealthy aunt, a former wife of orchestra leader Paul Whiteman, apparently committed suicide yesterday in a downtown hotel.

The fully clothed body of William J. Cootes was found in his room by a maid. Police said he had died apparently of an overdose of sleeping pills.

They found a passport and a note giving directions for the disposal of his body. An empty pill bottle also was found.

Midnight Fight Results In Jail

A San Rafael man was booked on an assault charge at midnight last night after a fight in front of 809 Fourth Street, San Rafael.

Police said they booked John Henry Wiesner, 34, of 79 Woodland Avenue, Apt. 40, on a citizen's arrest by William L. Thrower, 45, of 1449 Lincoln Avenue, Apt. A.

Thrower contended he was an innocent by-stander as a running argument between Wiesner and his wife poured from a taxi into the street while Thrower was getting in his car. Thrower claimed Wiesner hit him.

Wiesner, in turn, claimed Thrower had started the fight, and stories of witnesses conflicted, but police allowed Thrower to make the citizen's arrest.

pump huge sums into the schools.

The resulting "jumble of influential private and public bodies," he warns, cannot begin to meet the nation's critical eduaction needs. Recent progress in teaching techniques has created "complications" for the schools, Conant says, and he adds: "It is my belief that there will be more radical changes in the future and this in turn means that our old methods of determining educational policy need drastic revision to meet the impact of the educational revolution."

Though Britain, France, the Soviet Union and most other nations operate national education policies set by their central governments, Conant does not believe such a solution will ever be practical or even desirable in the United States.

"We can dismiss any talk of the federal government establishing and operating a federal system of schools or even a single school or college or university in one of the 50 sovereign states," he says.

"Clearly a government without the power to establish educational institutions is hardly in a position to establish a national educational policy."

Instead he proposes creation of an interstate commission to plan a nationwide—rather than national—policy of education.

"The compact would have to be drawn up by the states and approved by Congress," Conant suggests.

"The document would provide for the membership of the commission and provide the guidelines for its operation. Each state would be represented, though a group of less populous states might decide to be represented by one person.

"Each state would be ready to listen to any conclusions of the commission, but, of course, would not be bound to follow its recommendations."

Financing such an effort might present problems in the state legislatures, Conant concedes, "but I hope not, for if it were proposed that the Congress of the United States do so, certainly the cry of states' rights might be raised."

The commission's motto, Conant says, should be "More Facts, Fewer Slogans." It should promptly assign "working parties" to some of the more critical areas in American education today.

Among these, Conant suggests, are education in grades 13 and 14 (junior colleges); vocational training; science and engineering; the education of the Negro; medical education; uniformity of standards for post-graduate degrees, and the promotion of research and scholarly endeavors in all fields of higher learning.

Conant urges all citizens concerned with education "to make their voices heard at the state capitals" and all state legislators. He also urges members of Congress to take a close look at the need for interstate cooperation toward the goal of better education for all Americans.

Collision Hurts Two Marinites

Two Marin residents were injured in a rear-end collision on Highway 101 a half mile south of the Alto interchange at 2:35 a.m. today.

The California Highway Patrol said a car driven by Robert C. Salvas, 42, of 68 Meadow Drive, Mill Valley, struck the rear of one driven by Frank H. McQueeney, 57, of 1 Cedar Avenue, Kentfield.

McQueeney suffered a cut scalp and a bruised left hand, while Salvas complained of neck pains. Both planned to see their own doctors, the patrol reported.

Salvas told patrolmen he changed from the fast lane to the center lane on the northbound side of the highway, not seeing McQueeney's car until just before he hit it. Salvas was cited for unsafe speed.

Lane Dividers Report Asked

Recommendations on the fate of the red and yellow striped plastic lane dividers on the Golden Gate Bridge have been requested by the bridge directors from the district's highway, roads and traffic committee.

Jerome B. White, attorney for the district, told the directors yesterday that the bridge district might be held liable for injuries suffered by motorists because of the dividers.

James Adams, general manager, had reported that several thousand of the temporary plastic tubes used to control bridge traffic had been hit and dislodged since they came into use two years ago.

Notched Collars Difficult? Then Try These Instructions

By EUNICE FARMER

I am struggling with a notched collar on a suit and am sure convinced that I have bitten off more than I can chew. The places where all the seams meet just don't want to fit without a lumpy look. Surely I can't be the only gal with these troubles.

Mrs. J. J. E.

Dear Mrs. J.J.E.:

From the number of letters I get on this very tricky part of a garment, I am sure that everyone has problems with the notched collar. You will have to mark your garment accurately with all the key matching points given on the pattern.

1. Machine stitch the undercollar to the neckline seam of your garment. Do not machine stitch to the edge of the fabric; stop on the 5/8-inch seamline and secure the stitching. Clip the curved seam, press open, and catch stitch to interfacing.
2. Machine stitch the top collar to the neck edge of the facing. Clip the curved seam and press this seam open.
3. Pin and machine stitch the facing to the front of garment. Be sure all previous seams you have stitched end at exactly the same spot, where the collar joins the neck edge. Again, secure the stitching. At no time on this collar construction should you stitch the seam allowances in the seams, stitch only two layers of fabric at a time, carefully folding excess seam allowance out of the way.
4. The last stitching will be the outer edges of the collar. Again carefully pin and match the critical spot where the collar joins the garment.
5. Press all seams open on your edge board, grade the seams and check to see where you can eliminate excess fabric by clipping and notching. Always remember to make your garment as flat as possible and eliminate as much bulk as possible.
6. Edge baste from the facing side of garment. Don't forget that the facing becomes the top collar at the beginning of the roll line. The edge basting should be done from the wrong side of garment. Bring a small edge of the top layer to the back as you baste, to prevent facing slipping out and showing from the right side.
7. Press carefully with a press cloth and a hot iron. Push the excess fabric you will need for your collar and lapels to roll nicely, baste in place and catch stitch the edge of facing to the interfacing.

SKIRT STAYS IN

A strip of light weight corduroy, cut on the cross-grain, attached to the inside of the skirt waistband will keep shirts and blouses from slipping up and out. (Works great on slacks and shorts, too).

Heroic Quentin Inmate Teaches Us All A Lesson

"There is so much good in the worst of us,
And so much bad in the best of us,
That it hardly behooves any of us
To talk about the rest of us."

THOSE WORDS WILL inevitably go rumbling through your head if you read the current (Nov. 5) issue of the San Quentin News.

Aceves was a member of a 14-man crew near Nice.

In the words of the San Quentin News, "The crew had retreated from a deadly fire pocket and after reaching safety Aceves mistakenly believed his foreman, Darrel Kohler (a state forester), had not come out. He dashed back into the fire area where he was overcome by smoke and tumbled down a flaming ravine."

Ironically, Kohler had already reached safety.

NOW ACEVES IS undergoing treatment at San Quentin hospital, still facing more extensive skin grafts and plastic surgery.

The State Board of Forestry has lately added its voice to the acknowledgements of Aceves' heroic act, voting a resolution of commendation.

Is it not human nature to complacently assume that one's fellowman will ask for help if he needs it?

Is it not human nature to selfishly assume that under such circumstances it would be too late and only futile to try to help?

Aceves practiced what Christ taught: Be concerned about your fellowman; help him when he needs help.

There ought to be some way to provide Aceves with the hero's welcome he has earned when he is released from San Quentin to return to Orange County.

The "People" of California dealt with Aceves' offense in "People vs. Aceves," sending him off to prison.

Do not the "People" now owe it to Aceves to acclaim his heroic act when he returns?

THE SAN QUENTIN NEWS has also had two editorials of special note recently.

The first dealt with the current fashion of blaming parents (and parents taking the blame) for the bad behavior of their offspring, of all ages.

The San Quentin News editorial writer noted rather forcefully that there are in the prison a good many offenders who came from good families, who were loved and cared for by their parents, who were guided along high religious and moral paths by their parents—and still wound up in San Quentin.

He advised inmates not to rationalize their errors by blaming their parents and he advised parents (we question whether he has a very big audience in this field) NOT to assume the blame for all the misbehavior of their offspring.

What he left unsaid was that we still must often look elsewhere than to parents when we seek the basic cause for a person "going wrong."

A MORE RECENT editorial dealt with the inmate's views on elections and democracy in general.

It noted that the inmate knows about American constitutional freedoms first hand, perhaps better than other Americans. The inmate, imprisoned, suffers the loss of constitutional freedoms the rest of us take for granted.

This, said the San Quentin News, constitutes an opportunity for inmates to gain appreciation of American freedoms, an appreciation that exceeds that of all who take their freedoms for granted.

The masthead says you can subscribe to the San Quentin News for $1.00 per year. Some of the editorials of late have alone been worth the price.

Bully for the I-J's sister publication, printed and published behind the cold gray walls.

More Than One Way To Spell

Andrew Jackson was one of our most colorful Presidents. A radical for his time, he was fiercely independent and was regarded as a backwoods boob by the banking interests in the East. He was no boob, as they were to find out.

However, he could not spell worth a darn. He was subjected to considerable ridicule on this score. But he was unperturbed by the noises of his detractors. "It's a damn poor mind that can only think of one way to spell a word," he said.

You know it's true. This statement of his has endeared him to generations of those who toil with words and ink-stained fingers. A simple truth simply stated.

PARTIAL CHECKLIST FOR MARRIAGE PREPARATION

To be an effective husband and father requires serious preparation.

A young man can do this by showing a sensitivity to the feelings and rights of others. He can also develop habits of thoroughness, decisiveness and reliability in fulfilling his present obligations.

To be a devoted wife and mother likewise involves a preparation that should begin in the early teens.

Besides increasing her capacity for an enduring love of husband and children, a young woman should acquire the skills and qualities of a good homemaker. Among these are cooking, sewing, neatness, order, economy, punctuality, and unending patience.

With such healthy habits and attitudes, based on love of God, the prospects for marital happiness are considerably brighter.

(I Corinthians 7:3)

Inspire me, O Holy Spirit, to give proper guidance to those preparing for marriage.

Barry's Debacle Blamed On Press

Editor, Independent-Journal:

How well your "clever" Interlandi expressed it today on the editorial page, saying that the bitter hatred of the campaign is not defeated. . . . The hatred of the campaign was generated by the press, propagated by the press and the flame was fanned by the press.

What has happened to the noble, honest newspaperman who helped make our country great? . . . Rather than leave the opinion-expressing to the editor, the reporter reports his own opinions, likes and dislikes, . . . planting the seeds of negativism in the minds of his readers.

Lyndon Johnson did not have a massive and monumental triumph at all — the press did.

The GOP party is not defeated. The 25,000,000 people who voted for Barry Goldwater were . . . on fire for a cause that is much larger than a candidate. . . . What was done to that noble and honest American, Mr. Goldwater, is enough to cause one to lose faith in the press completely. I looked in vain to find one objective article . . . concerning the Senator. The people . . . were largely taken in by the fear campaign of our booze-soaked newspapermen who spoke of Goldwater's Arizona Mafia, Goldwater's shooting from the hip, if it was bad, it was applied to Goldwater. . . . God help our nation if something isn't done to purge the press — and soon.

. . . America, thanks in a large part to the press, is fighting everything else but Communism and those who dare to speak out against Communist activities in our country, which are factual, are immediately denounced by the press and called "Birchers" or "right wingers". . . and a person who would dare try to save the country becomes the enemy and the Communist the friend.

What will wake America up? The press could do it.

Just by objective reporting, the press could do it.

God help us if the press does not.

The only thing that keeps me from despairing . . . is the fact that those of us who are followers of Jesus Christ will soon be taken out of this world . . . but I personally would not want to be counted as one of those who helped bring the terrible things of prophecy to pass.

Lyndon Leading To The Bottom

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Ah, I see that all is back to normal again now that the elections are over. There are riots in Japan (over us, as usual), Russia unveils new missiles (the word disarmament doesn't seem to be in Russian dictionaries), China and Russia are all puckered up for their make-up kiss, and Fidel claims full control of missiles (our State Department claims don't even exist); not to mention more G.I.s dead in Vietnam. Right back to our weak stand and position in the world. Right where the communists want us and right where "Landslide Lyndon" will lead us—to the bottom of the heap. Right where this country well deserves to be.

Let's face it—an overwhelming majority voted for the principles of the A. D. A., total disarmament in the face of an enemy who believes treaties are made to be broken. Low moral government standards and the eventual socialist takeover of this nation. Yellow should become the national color and strike out the red, white and blue.

The "peace at any cost" boys are well in control and the sheep who never had it so good have been fattened enough for the slaughter. I wonder who the Judas goat will be? Happily there are 27,000,000 who do not consider themselves sheep and you can be sure you will be hearing from them within the next four years, and they won't be booing either.

Holy Day Coming On Baha'i Calendar

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Nov. 12 marks the Birthday of Baha'u'llah, the Founder of the Baha'i World Faith, a Holy Day on the Baha'i calendar. The Marin Community is holding a public meeting Saturday evening at the Jewish Community Center and I hope the details will be on the Church Page that night.

I can hear people saying, who was Baha'u'llah? . . . He was born of noble parents and seemed destined for a high government position. I. Q. tests were unheard of in the last century, but he taught himself to read and there can be little doubt he was a genius. He early showed more interest in spiritual things than political, and became an ardent follower of the Bab. After the execution of the Bab in the city of Tabriz for the crime of heresy, there followed wholesale persecution of his followers in which 10,000 Babis, as his followers were called, were tortured, killed, their bodies mutilated and their graves desecrated.

After an attempt on the life of the Shah by a crazed Babi, the persecution was increased and Baha'u'llah was locked in a lightless, filthy, cramped underground dungeon, where he was chained with about 50 other men, mostly common criminals. A heavy yoke was placed upon his neck, the scars of which he bore the rest of his life. Such treatment would have embittered and broken a lesser man. After some months he was released and sent in exile to Baghdad, then Adrianople and finally the prison city of Akka in Palestine. His commanding presence, his unflagging zeal, his moral and spiritual qualities, and his untiring pen won more and more converts to his Cause. We Baha'is believe he was the Manifestation of God for this day. We invite your independent investigation.

Backward Step On Prop. 14

Editor, Independent-Journal:

A few more great strides (backwards) as we have just witnessed in the passing of Proposition 14 and Mississippi will be sending "Freedom Workers" to California.

It seems logical to assume that we next may expect agitation to repeal the 13th, 14th and 15th Amendments to the U. S. Constitution and to set aside the Emancipation Proclamation.

How Much Of Goldwater Defeat Can Be Laid To 'Trigger' Charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater dug his political grave before he ever formally got into the presidential race. After that he sealed it.

Before saying he was a candidate—perhaps when he never dreamed of being one — in speeches and books he expressed views completely out of the mainstream of American life for the past 30 years.

ONCE IN THE RACE he became vague, hedged on some of his unpopular previous statements, and used up an extraordinary amount of his time insisting he was not irresponsible.

It seems incredible that a presidential candidate would feel it necessary to protest he was not "trigger-happy." But he admitted this charge against him by Democrats was one of his worst handicaps.

THUS IN THE SLAUGHTER inflicted on him in the election by President Lyndon B. Johnson, the voters who repudiated him in such overwhelming numbers had to consider two things above all: His views and his judgment.

For a man who proposed to change the long-accepted view of American government — a big one, with broad responsibility for the general welfare—he put on an unimaginative performance. He proposed almost nothing concrete.

His own hand-picked men who ran the party and the campaign for him — his brain trust—must share responsibility for the inadequacies of his performance.

HE AND THEY were the constant critics of things as they are but were almost totally lacking on the constructive side in the sense of offering specific solutions for what they said ailed the country.

What they seemed to have in mind, judging from the little they made clear in the campaign and from what Goldwater said before he became a candidate, was this: A much diminished central government and the elimination of many programs, particularly many social welfare programs.

After his shattering defeat Goldwater couldn't hope for another try at the White House.

Of far more importance now to the future of the two-party system in American politics—and perhaps to the future of the country—is what happens to the Republican organization in the four years before the next election.

CONSERVATIVE Goldwaterites have control of the party machinery. Will the moderate and liberal Republicans, shunted aside this year, let them keep control?

Every Republican in the country today—no matter the shade of his thinking — must ask himself that question. For unless the badly split organization is put together it may wind up as a splinter group.

One prediction seems accurate: An intense fight for control of the party is coming. As if in anticipation of this and in defiance of anti-Goldwater Republicans, the senator's campaign manager, Denison Kitchel, said: "It doesn't look like we're going to win this first round. We have to wait for four years, but we're going to get this government back where it belongs."

FOR MORE THAN a generation the Democratic and Republican parties were so much alike that they represented only various shades of the middle and in that time presidential races were personality contests, not elections on issues.

This was the first time in all those years that the voters had a chance to choose between a moderate course of government — particularly the welfare state government, such as this one—and the skeleton, conservative kind represented by the Goldwaterites.

If it hadn't been for that one odd factor in this campaign—the consideration voters had to give to Goldwater's responsibility or lack of it—it could be argued the whole Goldwater philosophy was repudiated.

But because the factor is there Goldwater's heirs in control of the party can argue that the voters were not rejecting their kind of conservatism but were influenced by the "trigger-happy" charge.

BARKER ON CHINA

Mao Regards Self As World's Savior

By GEORGE BARKER

Mao Tse-tung has lost all perspective in his assessment of his own and China's role in history. He now regards his destiny as the Savior of Mankind and his mission the "Liberation" of the World. Mao has been praised, glorified and sanctified by Peking's propaganda until we are watching the evolution of a human mind which has lost the standards by which to measure itself.

HE IS RIDING HIGH today. The people are told that the economic situation has never been better, that the harvest was superlative, that Chinese industry can produce anything without foreign assistance, while the ordinary man in the street is living at a bare subsistence level. Mao, the great prophet, told Khrushchev, "The day you call the meeting (to excommunicate China from the Communist movement) you will step in your grave." Then Mao made China an atomic power the same day. Is he not the greatest of the great men of our century? It is evident he thinks so and, surrounded by a covey of like-minded sycophants, his ambitions are becoming pathological.

THIS IS NOT MERELY my idea, it is the consensus of a group of men in Hong Kong who spend every waking hour reading newspapers and monitoring radio broadcasts from Red China. They write, "This messianic complex . . . in China is the pathological symptom of one man and his admirers; it is utterly alien to genuine Chinese feeling. People inside China see only the beginning of a new wave of mental purge and everybody is lining up for new self-accusation; potential enemies of Mao are being sought in every organization with a renewed rigor called class struggle...."

This gigantic dream of Mao's and of his top-echelon buddies, that of liberating the world from "capitalist oppression," must be kept in mind when we follow the attempts to patch up the Moscow-Peking alliance and present to the world a semblance of unity. With Chou En-lai in Moscow, we can speculate that open polemics will be toned down for a while and that public debate between the two will be replaced by serious negotiations. But I am sure it is safe to predict that Moscow won't buy Peking's brand of communism. They had it under Stalin to a certain degree, and once was too much.

MOSCOW'S NEW LEADERS must feel a bit sick at the stomach when they read things like the following excerpt from an editorial in the "People's Daily" for Oct. 22: "China has something more powerful than the atomic bomb, that is, the ever-victorious thinking of Mao Tse-tung, the leadership given by the great, glorious and correct Communist Party, the 650 million people, firmly united and with a high degree of political consciousness, and its superior social system. By relying on this, we can defeat any formidable enemy."

While Mao nourishes his over-inflated ego on his recent twin triumphs, the world gazes at and wonders about his growing megalomania.

Assembly Shows Biggest Change In California Ballot

Experts Confounded Again; Brown's Forecasts Wrong

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — California voters again have confounded the political experts.

While following the nation in the unprecedented landslide election of President Lyndon B. Johnson, Californians then turned their backs on the rest of the nation-wide trend of electing more Democrats.

George Murphy, a Republican, was elected U. S. senator, defeating Sen. Pierre Salinger. The line-up in Congress remained unchanged at 23 Democrats and 15 Republicans. This, however, included one more Republican than after the 1962 election, as Rep. Del Clawson (R-Compton) retained his seat.

The line-up also remained the same in the State Senate, with a 27-13 bulge for the Democrats. But the real upset occurred in the State Assembly, where the Democrats lost their 52-28 edge of the 1963 session and must go into the 1965 session of the legislature with only a 49-31 majority.

The Democratic leadership experienced difficulties in both 1963 and 1964 in obtaining a two-thirds vote on such matters as the budget and is expected to have even more problems along these lines next year.

JOHN L. BURTON
A newcomer

THE CASUALTY LIST for incumbents was higher than usual — especially in the Assembly. Rep. Pat Martin (R-Riverside) was defeated by John V. Tunney, son of the famed prize fighter from Riverside, a Democrat. Senator Salinger, filling out a short unexpired term of the late Sen. Clair Engle (D-Red Bluff), also fell by the wayside. The State Senate found no casualties among incumbents, but a total of six assemblymen went down to defeat, including two who were put on the unemployed list in the June primary. Normally, no more than one or two incumbent legislators are defeated.

THE TWO PRIMARY victims had been Assemblyman Edward M. Gaffney (D-San Francisco), a veteran of 22 years in the lower house, and Assemblyman John Moreno (D - Santa Fe Springs), a first-termer. In both cases, the men defeating them were elected Nov. 3. These were John L. Burton (D-San Francisco) and Jack R. Fenton (D-Montebello).

TWO OTHER VETERANS became victims at the polls. They were Assemblyman James L. Holmes (R-Santa Barbara), a member since 1954, who was beaten by Winfield A. Shoemaker (D-Lompoc), and Assemblyman Myron Frew (D-Dinuba), a member since 1956, who was defeated by Gordon W. Duffy (R-Hanford). The other two incumbent losers were Assemblymen Tom Waite (D-Lancaster) and Harold E. Booth (D-Orland). They were defeated by Newton R. Russell (R-Tujunga) and Ray E. Johnson (R-Chico). Both were completing first terms.

VOTING ON PROPOSITIONS also was somewhat of a puzzle. Voters went along with Gov. Edmund G. Brown and his administration in approving 790 million dollars in bonds for beaches and parks, state construction, and school building aid loans. They backed the governor in defeating Proposition 16, which would have created a lottery to be operated by a private firm. But they were unmoved by an all-out campaign by Brown and his appointees for many months and voted in favor of Proposition 14. This is the initiative that nullifies the Rumford housing act and prohibits adoption of similar legislation in the future.

PAY TELEVISION is outlawed under the approval of Proposition 15 and the practice of featherbedding on passenger train engines is ended under the approval of Proposition 17. Brown's administration did not take an active part in campaigns for either of these propositions.

FINAL FIGURES from Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan showed a total vote for the presidency of 6,841,355, or only about 83.5 per cent of the registered vote. In the 1960 presidential election, the turnout was 88 per cent and most experts had predicted an even higher voter participation this time. Jordan had forecast a 90 per cent vote, while the prediction in Los Angeles County was for a 92 per cent balloting.

WINFIELD A. SHOEMAKER
Democratic winner

The disappointing turnout no doubt will touch off fireworks concerning the "projection" of the presidential vote some four hours before the California polls closed in many counties.

QUESTIONS OF constitutionality are expected to be raised on two of the propositions which were approved by the voters. As they now are part of the California Constitution, the question must be their application under the U. S. Constitution. These are Proposition 14, repealing the Rumford act, and Proposition 15, prohibiting pay television.

GOVERNOR BROWN'S batting average in election forecasts was .500, which was an improvement over his score of .000 in 1960. In 1960, Brown had said the late John F. Kennedy would carry California by 1 million votes and he actually lost the state to Richard M. Nixon by 35,000 votes. This year, Brown said President Johnson would win California's 40 electoral votes with a majority of 1 million and the president topped that figure considerably. However, Brown also had forecast that Salinger would be returned to office by a half-million majority. This made Brown off about 700,000 votes in the senatorial race.

AS STATE GOVERNMENT slowly began the return to post-election normalcy, agricultural interests were awaiting announcement by Governor Brown of his farm labor program, which he had promised for after the election.

The bracero program for importing Mexican farm workers is slated to end Dec. 31, and all reports indicate there will not be sufficient domestic workers available to replace them. Senator-elect Murphy made effective use of this upcoming crisis during his campaign, pointing out Salinger offered no answers.

JFK's 'Little Cabinet' Future Shaky

Positions By Hundreds Up To LBJ

By BONNIE ANGELO
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — New Frontiersmen are going through the post-election jitters with the Great Society.

Now that their party and president are in by a landslide, the scores of Kennedy appointees in choice government jobs are worrying about their future.

More than 450 government positions are filled by the president, besides his selection of about 400 honorary appointees to boards and commissions, 115 ambassadors and 50 federal judges.

It is generally believed that President Lyndon B. Johnson is asking his entire cabinet to stay on, but there is no assurance that this invitation is also extended to the undersecretaries, assistant secretaries and other members of the "little cabinet."

Asked if they will stay on, they tend to counter with a shrug and "you tell me." Other men not so widely known but who wield influence within the government are not sure whether they should start work on new programs or start looking for new work.

The highest vacancy is the attorney general's post, which has been filled by Nicholas Katzenbach as acting attorney general since Robert F. Kennedy resigned in September. Since Katzenbach was not given the full title, doubt has been expressed that he would be covered by the president's reported blanket invitation to the cabinet to stay.

SECRETARY ROBERT S. McNAMARA
Is defense chief ready for a change?

For months Johnson has allowed some positions to remain vacant, building up a backlog of important plums for distribution now. At both Treasury and Interior departments the undersecretary's slot is open. At the Pentagon and the State Department a number of second and third echelon jobs — still commanding sizable empires of their own—need to be filled, and the regulatory commissions have several vacancies.

But in post-election Washington even the knowledge that there are vacancies to be filled and the reliable reports that the president wants no disruptive turnover are not enough to soothe all federal officeholders. Many good jobs, with their newly respectable pay scales, are tied to a higher official. If he goes, so do they.

Several cabinet officers and agency heads are expected to return to private life after putting in their stint of government service.

Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon is reported to be torn between staying on and returning to his family's Wall Street brokerage firm; Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara had made close friends think he was ready for a change from the Pentagon; John McCone, chief of the Central Intelligence Agency, is concerned about his West Coast enterprises.

Such departures as these would put in question dozens of jobs which are listed as presidential appointments but are actually selected by the cabinet officers and agency heads. New arrivals are generally expected to put their own men in, a political fact of life which breeds anxiety in the vulnerable staffers.

Post-election employment problems of another kind are plaguing employees on Capitol Hill, where about 750 staff members of defeated lawmakers are looking for jobs.

Along with this group is an additional 600 or so whose bosses retired, died or else were defeated in party primaries earlier in the year, and a number of patronage jobs which vanish with the congressmen who dispense them.

Many office secretaries, however, will switch from Republican to Democratic bosses without breaking step. Not involved with policies or politics, they are often kept on by the men who displaced their former bosses, simply because they know where things are on Capitol Hill. And that in itself is cause for awe among freshmen congressmen.

Russia Increases Oil Pipeline Delivery To Grab Western Market

By RICHARD F. NEWCOMB
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The Soviet Union is over a barrel—an oil barrel.

The natives are restless, and its needs for everything—food, machinery, chemical plants, refineries, pipe—are forcing it to go to the outside world.

Only exports can pay for these things, and Russia has little to export except gold and oil. Of the two, oil is the best bet for the long run. It is now Russia's largest single export, and probably will be for years to come.

But to keep the oil gushing to the outside world, the Soviet Union will have to keep production rising. To achieve that, the Russians in turn have to go to the Free World to buy more deep drilling rigs, more bits, pipe, compressors, pumps, even whole refineries.

At the moment, the Russians are doing just fine. In 1952 the Soviet Union exported about eight million tons of oil. By 1962 the figure was nearly 45 million tons, by next year it is expected to be over 60 million tons. The National Petroleum Council, which keeps an eye on these matters, believes that by 1970 Russian petroleum exports will be between 65 and 80 million tons a year. Of that output, some 50 million tons are expected to be going to Free Europe, giving Russia 10 per cent of that market.

To move the oil to market, the Russians embarked about 1957 on a giant building program of pipelines and tankers. The Russian tanker fleet is the fastest growing in the world. The tonnage will nearly quadruple between 1958 and 1965. By next year, Soviet tankers will be carrying 85 per cent of the nation's petroleum exports. As much as a million barrels a day may be moving into the Free World, with virtually no reliance on foreign shipping.

The pipeline program has gone more slowly, but is beginning to come into operation. Major segments of the so-called Friendship Line—a vast network running from the Volga-Urals oil pool through the satellite nations and into Western Europe — are now pulsing with oil.

The aorta of the Friendship Line is the 40-inch section running from Kuibyshev in the Volga-Urals to Mozyr. From there, 24- and 20-inch branch lines carry oil into Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, East Germany and the Baltic. Other lines run to the Black Sea tanker docks.

The meaning of the pipeline is this: Under the old rail system it cost 90 cents a barrel to ship oil to Ventspils, on the Baltic. The pipeline cost is 31 cents a barrel. Using the pipeline, Russia can deliver oil to Stockholm at a cost of 48 cents a barrel for transportation. By tanker the cost is 64 cents a barrel for Free World oil from the Persian Gulf.

And this brings up another point: The Russians, as they do with most things, use oil as a political weapon. In the Free World, Russia has steadily cut the price of oil, from $2.16 per barrel in 1955 to $1.36 in 1962.

At the same time, Russia charged her satellites $3.38 a barrel in 1955 and had dropped the price only to $2.98 a barrel in 1962. When Russia wanted large diameter pipe from Japan, Japan got oil for $1.26 a barrel. West Germany, which can supply pipe and machinery, can get Russian oil for $1.30 a barrel, while East Germany is paying $2.66. Italy, which also supplied pipe to Russia, got oil at $1.30 a barrel, while Hungary was paying $3.03. When the Soviet Union wants to infiltrate, throttle or control a country, oil can be a great little "loss leader".

And there is plenty of oil left in the old barrel. The National Petroleum Council estimates that Soviet reserves in 1960 were 3.7 billion tons. By 1963 they were 4.4 billion tons. They've got to keep drilling for it, and finding it, but there's plenty of it there. For the foreseeable future, the Soviet Union looms large in the world picture.

THIS WEEK In The World

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

From his headquarters in bombed-out Tokyo in the aftermath of World War II, the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur declared that Japan never again would be a world power.

This pledge took the form of Article 9 of Japan's new Constitution, a document drawn up under MacArthur's close supervision. It renounced forever Japan's right to wage war and said the nation could not maintain "land, sea and air forces as well as other military potential."

Article 9 brought few objections from the war-weary Japanese, whose cities lay in ruins and who nearly all had lost loved ones in one of the bloodiest conflicts of all time.

Even more than a return to militarism, the Japanese feared any association with nuclear weapons. Two of their cities were flattened by the only two atomic bombs ever dropped on any nation. More than 150,000 persons perished in the attacks.

But in 1950, General MacArthur, with the Communist attack in Korea in mind, authorized a 75,000-man national security force for Japan, arguing it was needed for self defense.

This brought cries that militarism was on the rise again and could lead to the introduction of nuclear weapons to Japan. Opposition to the military force has been heard ever since, in recent years encouraged by extremist groups.

It rose again this week with the arrival at Sasebo of the U.S. submarine Sea Dragon, the first nuclear-powered sub to visit Japan. Joining the extremist organizations in opposition were well-meaning groups that feared the sub was unsafe and could contaminate Japanese waters.

The visit had been in the planning stages for a long time. The Japanese government gave its approval last August after long consideration and assurances from the U.S. that it would carry no nuclear weapons. The visit was to provide rest for the submarine crews.

Tension built up in the days preceding the sub's arrival. Such extremist groups as the left-wing general council of Japan Trade Unions organized protest rallies.

About 5,000 left-wing Zengakuren-led students demonstrated Friday night in Tokyo and 10 were arrested when they tried to march on the American Embassy.

In Peking, Red China called the visit a "threat" to peace in Asia.

Communists and Socialists called for 14,000 demonstrators Friday in Sasebo, but only 5,000 turned out. Two students were arrested in a clash with police at the naval base's main gate.

They chanted slogans such as "keep atomic submarines away," "protect our harbors," and "Yankee go home."

Good Declarer Plays Useful To Defenders In Bridge Game

All of the plays that you use as declarer are available to you when you defend.

They are harder to see, and you must get your partner's cooperation, but the plays themselves are just the same.

Opening lead — ♠ 8

East enthusiastically won the first trick with the ace of spades and returned a spade to dummy's king. Declarer led a small heart from dummy, and West captured the queen with the ace.

LAST SPADE

West returned his last spade to South's jack. Declarer got to dummy with a heart to try the club finesse, losing to West's king.

West was now out of spades, and any other return found South taking nine tricks: two spades, two hearts, one diamond, and four clubs.

The crucial play came at the first trick, when East muffed a play that he would make in his sleep if he were playing the hand as declarer.

SPADE TRICK

East must not win the first or second spade trick.

It's easy for East to get his partner's cooperation. Instead of winning the first spade trick, East drops the nine of spades. He encourages a continuation by playing the highest spade he can spare.

Declarer knocks out the ace of hearts, and West leads another spade. East plays the five, once more playing as high a card as he can spare.

CLUB FINESSE

Declarer must next try the club finesse. West wins with the king of clubs and returns his last spade.

East at last takes the ace of spades and is then ready to win tricks with his last two spades. These tricks defeat the contract.

Redwoods Park Plan Gets Strong Protest

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Creation of the proposed Redwoods National Park in Northern California would further impoverish a depressed area, boards of supervisors of three coastal counties said yesterday.

Board members headed a protest delegation meeting with E. A. Hummel, regional director of the Department of Interior.

Supervisor Melvin J. Bareilles of Humboldt County presented a petition protesting creation of the park. It was signed by 561 persons in Rio Dell. He said the petition was circulated for only two and a half days by Mrs. Mary Marks.

Bareilles said, "This is just a sample. We could get just as many signatures as we wanted because public feeling is running so high."

Norman R. Robertson, Humboldt board of supervisors chairman, said that 1,200 men would be thrown out of work in the lumber industry immediately if the park is established.

He said the payroll loss would amount to 7 million dollars annually.

Robertson said an additional 1,200 workers are among timber industry suppliers and allied firms.

He declared that Humboldt and Del Norte counties would lose over $700,000 in tax revenue annually because of the transfer of privately owned acreage to federal ownership.

Humboldt County alone would lose 52,100 acres of taxable privately owned land.

Harold Del Ponte, a Del Norte supervisor, said in lieu taxes would be needed if the county were to survive. He contended that "we have been a depressed area."

Recently an 8 million - dollar lumber manufacturing complex was proposed. "We thought this would lift our employment above a depressed level," Del Ponte said.

But talk of the park plans appears to have scuttled the lumbering project, he said.

Joseph G. Hartley, Mendocino supervisor, said that development of the present 28 state parks in the redwood country is needed so they could be used by tourists.

He declared many of the parks have no picnic areas, no camping facilities, no proper markings for some landmark trees. Trails are almost nonexistent.

Hummell promised to present a picture of the economic consequences to Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall. He said the Interstate Department does not create parks. "They are created by public demand," he said.

Novato Home, Car Burglarized

Burglaries of a Novato home and a parked car, netting a total of $275 in loot, were reported today by Marin County sheriff's officers.

Christopher Elverfeld, 800 Eucalyptus Avenue, Novato, told deputies someone—probably teen-agers—forced the garage door of his home early yesterday while he was away and made off with a $10 watch from inside the house.

Elverfeld, who had been moving into the residence the previous two days, said he suspected teen-agers because fruit peelings were discarded inside.

William H. Shields, 20 Corte Cordova, Greenbrae, reported a door of his car, parked at home, was forced yesterday and a tape recorder, tape, and electric shaver were taken. He estimated loss at $265.

Stinson Beach County Water District directors Thursday night agreed to write a letter to the Marin Municipal Water District expressing interest in an overall study of the water problem in West Marin, but would not commit the district to joining the MMWD.

The Marin Municipal Water District is asking water companies and districts in West Marin if they are interested in annexing. Petitions for annexation are being circulated in Point Reyes.

Johnson Calls For Prayer On Thanksgiving

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Lyndon B. Johnson has proclaimed Nov. 26 as Thanksgiving Day and urged that all Americans pray on that day "that the forces of evil, violence, indifference, intolerance and inhumanity may soon vanish" from the earth.

Johnson called on citizens to gather in their homes and their churches "to give thanks to God for His graciousness and His generosity to us — to pledge to Him our everlasting devotion — to beseech His divine guidance and the wisdom and strength to recognize and follow that guidance."

And he urged that Americans take the opportunity "to pray to Him that the forces of evil, violence, indifference, intolerance, and inhumanity may soon vanish from the face of the earth and that peace, reason, understanding, and good will may reign supreme through the world."

Loch Lomond Protests Fill

Discussion by members of the Loch Lomond Home Owners Assn. of the San Rafael General Plan continued at a lively pace Thursday night at the San Rafael High School cafeteria where 60 members gathered.

Association president Frank Battat continued the session until 8 p.m. Monday at San Pedro School, where he hopes a formal statement can be composed.

"We're definitely taking a stand against the policy of bay fill," Battat said today. The wording of the statement, however must be hammered out, he said.

Public hearing on the general plan before the San Rafael City Council centered on objections to development of privately owned submerged land and a periphery freeway that would swing around San Pedro Point on a causeway.

Governor Offers Farm Labor Snag Solution

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Edmund G. Brown yesterday offered a two-part program designed to solve California's farm labor dilemma.

Brown's solution, which was proposed to U. S. Labor Secretary Willard W. Wirtz, basically involved importation of foreign workers while the state gradually built up its own permanent domestic farm labor force.

The plan, which the governor said was formulated over months of meetings with farmers, union officials and government specialists, provided for a gradual phasing out of imported foreign labor under Public Law 414, the national immigration act. Meanwhile, minimum farm wages would be increased domestically.

"I believe these actions will encourage the agricultural industry to develop and utilize a domestic farm work force and to proceed with mechanization," the governor said in a prepared statement released by his office.

Brown said the plan would "provide an adequate work force for this year and for the years during which the domestic work force is being built up."

Farmers have been concerned about their crops next year due to expiration of the bracero program, Dec. 31. This program during the past few years has permitted the importation of thousands of Mexican bracero workers annually.

Lately, agriculture spokesmen have urged that the immigration act be used to import Mexicans if the bracero law is not renewed.

$175,000 In Injury Suits Filed

Two personal injury suits totaling $175,000 were filed yesterday in Marin Superior Court as result of a Dec. 14, 1963, eight-car traffic pile-up on Highway 101 near the Corte Madera overpass which took the life of a Mill Valley nursery manager.

Enrico Andrew Camarri, 55, Daly City, and his wife, Violet, are asking $125,000 from Beryl Kay Green, 36, of 113 Rice Lane, and Roy Hannick, 34, of 88 Diane Lane, both of Larkspur, and from Rose Cornaglia as alleged owner of one of the cars involved.

They allege negligent driving by Beryl Green resulted in the accident and their injuries.

Sidney Levin, 37, of 51 Cornell Avenue, Larkspur, and Julius Schwartz, 46, of 82 Corte Lenosa, Greenbrae, are suing Beryl Green, Roy Hannick and Enrico Camarri. They allege negligent driving by the defendants and ask judgment of $25,000 each for multiple injuries they suffered.

Killed in the pile-up was Richard Norman Hawley, 31, of 15 Bella Vista Avenue, Belvedere, manager of Egger and Son Nursery in Mill Valley.

North Marin Lacking Parks

North Marin is the fastest growing section of the county but has nothing in the way of parks, Kelvin J. Nelson, Marin County director of parks and recreation, Thursday night told the Novato Junior Chamber of Commerce meeting at Cloud Five.

Nelson said that the Marin County master plan on recreation would be ready about the first of the year.

"After that comes the North Marin parks and recreation master plan which includes Stafford Lake," he said.

Nelson complimented the community for excellent cooperation between the city and the North Marin Water District in working out the lake project.

Presbytery Still Striving Against All Segregation

The Commission on Religion and Race of the Presbytery of San Francisco has announced that it continues to seek a non-segregated church and a non-segregated society—despite last week's passage of Proposition 14.

The commission, representing 91 San Francisco Bay Area United Presbyterian Church congregations, called all ruling elders, pastors and members to continue to oppose discrimination, to work for open housing covenants and to cooperate with realtors who support fair housing practices.

Support for civil rights groups' plans to put Proposition 14 to a constitutional test in the state courts also was voiced by the commission.

Clay Okay After Surgery; Bout Off 6 Months

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay underwent a successful operation for a hernia last night that forced an indefinite postponement of Monday's scheduled rematch with Sonny Liston. It is unlikely that the bout will be held for six months.

A noon bulletin issued by Dr. Thomas O'Brien, one of the attending physicians, said Clay's condition was excellent. He said Clay is in good spirits, and is resigned to the fact that he won't fight for a while.

Clay was stricken last night after dinner and was rushed to Boston City Hospital where Dr. William McDermott of Harvard performed an "easy" one-hour operation that he called "common but serious."

Dr. McDermott said Clay could resume fairly normal physical activity in about a month and would have to lay off any heavy labor for three months. The 22-year-old champ would not be ready to box in competition until after another long conditioning process.

"The championship bout will be held in Boston when Clay is fit," said Herman Greenberg, chairman of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission. Representatives of all parties involved indicated they were in agreement.

When Liston first heard the news at his Plymouth, Mass, training camp, he commented, "no wonder he got a hernia running up and down like a wild man." Later, after the operation, he added, "it could have been worse. It could have been me."

Clay had just finished eating dinner in his hotel suite with Drew (Budini) Brown, his friend and assistant trainer, when he became ill.

He got violently sick and started to throw up," said Brown. "His stomach swelled up the size of a football. I wanted to call a doctor but Clay said 'no, get me to a hospital quick. I'm in bad pain'."

An ambulance rushed the champion to the hospital while wild rumors began to spread in press headquarters downtown.

Sam Silverman, the local co-promoter with Inter-Continental Sports, Inc., hustled to the hospital. Shortly afterward he announced the fight had been postponed indefinitely.

Garland (Bill) Cherry, attorney and also a stockholder in Inter-Continental, said there was no insurance carried on the fight.

Frederick Brooks, president of Sportsvision, the closed circuit firm that hoped to fill 600,000 theater and arena seats with this telecast, was unable to estimate his losses immediately. Asked if it could be as high as $250,000, Brooks said, "it could be somewhere around that but I couldn't even guess. There are so many things involved."

The delay was particularly aggravating to Liston who admits to 30 years. The former champion had hoped to regain some of the prestige he lost Feb. 25 when he lost his title to Clay while sitting on a stool when the bell rang for the seventh round. Liston claimed he had injured his left shoulder in the Miami fight.

Liston's camp had to decide whether the fighter should wait for Clay to recover or take another bout with some other contender. It was not expected that he would risk his rematch by boxing anybody else.

While Clay was waiting for the surgeons to decide if an operation was necessary, Dr. McDermott said one of the nurses asked the champ: "You are the greatest, aren't you?"

"Not tonight," was the answer.

Clay's trainer, Angelo Dundee, got the news in a bizaare fashion. He was watching a closed circuit telcast from Miami of the Boston College-Miami football game at Boston College.

"I heard the news from Miami," said Dundee. "They announced it on closed circuit so I came rushing right over."

A convey of newsmen and cameramen already were on the scene waiting for an announcement of a definite postponement.

Dr. McDermott said Clay had been suffering from an incarcerated groin hernia with a congenital defect in the abdominal wall.

Dr. Nathan Shapiro, examining physical of the State Boxing Commission who examined Clay shortly after the fight was postponed said there was no sign of a hernia when he examined the champion Monday.

It was the second title fight postponement in which Liston was involved. His second bout with Floyd Patterson, originally scheduled for April 4, 1963, in Miami Beach was set back when Liston suffered an injury to a knee while swinging a golf club. The fight was rescheduled for June 27 and was moved to Las Vegas.

Upset! San Rafael Gridders Stun Novato, 12-0

Rugged Defense Leads Bulldogs

By MAURICE WEINGER

San Rafael found five runners who could make its ground game go in the loose mud and used it to upset Novato, 12-0, last night at the Bulldog field.

The victory was the Bulldogs' second in Marin Athletic League play and assured San Rafael (3-5-1 on the year) a tie for fourth place with the loser of today's Redwood-Tamalpais contest, both teams finishing with 2-4 marks.

Novato ended its league season with a 3-3 mark and 6-3 overall.

It was the fine job of running by backs Tim Harr, Rocky Shone, Steve Rockwell, Tom Gagen and Jay Widmer that broke the game open with two fine drives in the first two periods.

Widmer, the junior quarterback, was never better, not only making needed yardage on quarterback rollouts around either ends but by faking the ball so well that the Hornet defense continually made the initial tackle on the wrong runner.

The surprise for the Bulldogs was the work of Gagen. A tackle at the beginning of the year because an automobile accident last year cut down his speed, this 215 pound bull, moved into a running spot last week and really came into his own as he opened the game at the fullback spot and was the key figure in San Rafael's first scoring drive.

Novato couldn't do anything right as it fumbled five times and lost the ball on four of the occasions. It was the first two fumbles, however, that cost tnem the ball.

Palmateer Recovers Key Fumble

On the second play from scrimmage, tailback Roy Otis lost the ball and defensive end Gary Palmateer fell on it 34 yards from the end zone.

Gagen then started his night of ball carrying with most of the running going off left tackle and the key block of tackle Ed Pascoe. In two plays, Gagen had the Bulldogs down to the 20 and Rockwell added another yard up the middle. Gagen again got a yard to the 18 where Harr tried his favorite right end run, and getting good footing, made 10 more to the eight and a first down.

It took San Rafael only one play for the score with Gagen going off left tackle and he made the six points after bouncing off at least three Hornet defenders.

In the second quarter, San Rafael increased its lead with Widmer being the standout of the drive. Another Hornet fumble resulted in Joe Cunningham recovering the ball on Novato's 37, but a 15 yard penalty moved the ball to the mid-field line.

Widmer then startled everyone by completing the short pass with the wet ball. He threw on the left side to Mike Bankmann for 13 yards on a second down call and came right back with another pass on the third down play with a shot to Palmateer.

The catch was the best play of the game. Palmateer cut down the middle of the field and reached up high with both hands to grab the ball on the 24 and a first down.

Harr's Touchdown Makes It 12-0

Harr shot up the middle for six and Gagen's left tackle run added another five to the 13. It was 12-0 when Harr raced around right end and past two tacklers for the score with 7:07 left in the quarter.

Only other time either team got near the end zone was in the third quarter after the second half kickoff The Bulldogs started from their 31, and drove completely on the ground to the four where they lost the ball on downs.

The drive was set up with the five runners alternating with carries and fakes as the longest runs of the drive were a 10-yarder by Widmer and two nine-yarders by Rockwell and Stone.

Novato, in a desperation attempt to score in the closing minutes, tried passing from its 30 with quarterbacks Don Phillips and Harold Fain alternating throws but the scoring attempt ended when Fain's pass was intercepted by Dave Cooley.

In the junior varsity contest, Novato scored with three minutes remaining to edge San Rafael, 6-0.

GOOD SHAPE THEN — This was the scene in Boston Monday when heavyweight champion Cassius Clay underwent a physical examination and was pronounced fit for his fight with Sonny Liston. Prep Grid Postponement Creates Some Problems

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Macbeth and Anastasia teamed up to beat out the Stanford-Cal football game next Saturday.

Whenever there are postponements there are complications. That was evident today, one day after the announcement that the championship Marin prep football game between Drake and Terra Linda was postponed.

The game was scheduled to be held tonight in Kentfield, but because of the soggy condition of the College of Marin football field, Terra Linda coach Peter Limm called off the battle.

Administrators of the two schools got together yesterday and had to make a decision on when the game would be made up. They came out with the announcement that it would be played next Saturday at 1:30 p.m. At that exact time, kickoff for the Stanford-Cal "Big Game" would be taking place in Berkeley.

This announcement of time immediately raised squawks from fans who had planned to see both "big games." But those fans are just out of luck.

The question was raised: "Why not have the Drake-Terra Linda game either next Friday or Saturday at night?"

That's were Macbeth and Anastasia come into the picture.

A school play of Macbeth is scheduled to be held next Friday and Saturday night at Drake, and a school play of Anastasia is scheduled to be staged the same nights at Terra Linda High School. And both principals — Harold Allison of Drake and George Yertson of Terra Linda — obviously don't want to have conflicting school activities competing against each other. Allison and Yertson were the ones who had to make the decision.

"We wanted to play the game tonight," Allison said today. "We have played a dozen times with the field in worse condition than it was yesterday at College of Marin."

Allison said he would rather have made up the game early in the week and was not in favor of carrying it over to next week. "It was suggested by Mr. Yertson to reschedule it for next Saturday. And we couldn't play at night on that weekend because of the play scheduled then."

Yertson said he also wanted the game to be played as soon as possible. "We would like to play early as we could, as close to the day of the original schedule. But it would take several days for the ground condition at the football field in Kentfield to improve."

"This was not a simple matter," said Yertson. "There was a conflict any way we moved. We feel the student activities come first, and the spectator reactions second."

Drake head grid coach Bob Franceschini was not in favor of postponing the game, being joined in his views by the rest of the Pirates' coaching staff.

"I see no reason for the postponement," said Franceschini. "We can't be guaranteed it will be any better next week. I felt the field was playable when I was out there yesterday. It's muddy, but playable."

Franceschini said he felt the condition of the field at San Rafael High School last year (when the Bulldogs upset Drake 24-0 in the last game of the season) was in no better shape than was the Kentfield field yesterday.

When asked if he felt the muddy field would hurt either team more than the other, the Drake head coach said, "It would hurt us quite a bit. With the speed of (Larry) Stein and (Dean) Lazzarini our big threats, we would be handicapped. Since we depend a lot on our break-away threat, it would hurt us as much as it would Terra Linda."

Terra Linda head coach Pete Limm said he took information from College of Marin custodians and his coaching staff and T.L. custodians before making the decision to call off the game. The consensus, said Limm, was that it would take four or five days for the field to adequately dry off.

"The game will be played next Saturday, wet or dry," said Limm. "If the field is too wet in Kentfield, we'll try to get the game moved to the San Rafael field."

A rumor cropped up at last night's San Rafael-Novato game that Terra Linda quarterback Gary Lieberman was out "all week" with the flu. Limm said that Lieberman was out of school Thursday, but was back yesterday, an absence of just one day.

Limm said he though the advantage would go to Drake on a muddy field because of the larger size of the Pirates. "If there is any advantage at all, it would be in favor of Drake."

MARIN GRID STAR GAME 'SET'

Plans are moving right along on the first Kiwanis Marin Prep All-Star football game for next year.

Bob Troppmann, director of athletics and head grid coach at Redwood High School, is the general manager of the program. He said yesterday that a tentative date of Aug. 28 has been set for the game, pending approval of the National Collegiate Athletic Assn.

It would be a Marin County North-South game, with graduating senior gridders from Terra Linda, San Rafael and Novato on the North team and footballers from Tamalpais, Redwood Drake and Marin Catholic comprising the South team.

Since the boys would be graduated from high school, the sanction for the game would have to come from the NCAA. The board of managers of the Marin Athletic League has given the game its vote of confidence.

The team will be picked by the coaches of the Marin Athletic League, probably the same day the mentors pick the All-Marin Athletic League teams. The coaches have a meeting scheduled Monday afternoon and will decide on whether or not to choose the all-league team before, or after the Drake-Terra Linda game which is rescheduled for next Saturday.

Plans call for the All-star game to be played at night at the College of Marin field in Kentfield. Word from the NCAA is expected around the first of March.

In charge of the program for the Kiwanis Club are Jack Younger and John McGlynn, the co-chairmen of the project.

Kids Grid Coach Resigns After Posting A Remarkable Record

A young man of 28 summers who has written a remarkable success story in Marin Pop Warner Football Conference record books has announced his resignation as head coach of the Redwood Junior Giants.

And the decision by John Pagliaro to "quit winners" brought a loud groan of disappointment from folks in the Redwood district but perhaps a collective sigh of relief from their opponents, for Pagliaro teams have dominated the Marin kids gridiron program like Gangbusters.

JOHN PAGLIARO

In the past six years Pagliaro-coached Redwood teams have won 43 games, lost only 4 and tied in 3 others. All four of those losses were in a bad 1962 season, but otherwise the Junior Giants have enjoyed five undefeated seasons under the crew-cut bespectacled Pagliaro's guidance.

Before the 1962 losing slump Redwood had a 30-game undefeated streak and since 1962 has been undefeated through 16 games. Included in those victories were three post-season bowl game triumphs over teams from Meridian and Boise, Idaho and San Diego.

Pagliaro's last game as coach was a 32-7 triumph over Drake two weeks ago which gave his team a tie for the Marin title with San Rafael.

After 50 games in 6 years, Pagliaro decided to hang up his coaching whistle, he said, "for personal reasons . . . I've devoted more time to this program than I really should have. It's about time I attended more to my personal life. I'll miss coaching a great deal. I don't have a family here so those kids I've coached have been like my family. For the next few years I'll sit in the stands and watch my kids develop. It'll be fun."

Paliaro is regional sales manager for International Consumer Charge, Inc., a credit card firm. Excuse the quip, but his teams have been a credit to the community. Charge!

Fortunately, there's a fine guy succeeding Pagliaro at the coaching helm. He is Ron Stuart, a well-known baseballer in his younger days (not long ago), who has been an assistant coach for the Redwood junior team for seven seasons.

MARIN'S BENNIE FORD, noted fight promoter and matchmaker for more years than he cares to remember, is bouncing back from a serious bout with ulcers and rarin' to get back in the big time fight business.

Bantam Bennie is talking up an Eddie Machen-George Chuvalo heavyweight scrap for San Francisco late in January.

EX-NOVATO HIGH and College of Marin star Bob Sparrow is one of six quarterbacks on the Utah roster for today's game against Cal at Berkeley —the second Novato Sparrow to make the grid grade in college ranks. Brother Jack was a Univ. of Pacific star a few semesters ago.

FORMER REDWOOD HIGH star Paul Ackerman was starting right half for UCLA's undefeated frosh gridders when they played Cal's fine Cubs this morning in the prelim to the Cal-Utah game at Berkeley.

The UCLA team reportedly is the finest frosh unit Coach Bill Barnes has recruited in his six years at head coach down south.

AND HOW about this: No less than three Marin Countians are members of the frosh grid team for the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis.

They are Wade Roberts (San Rafael), first string quarterback, and Mike Crabtree (Drake) and Joel Tobiason (Redwood), both second string ends.

SONNY LISTON has a sense of humor behind that sullen puss of his. When informed of Cassius Clay's operation last night, Sonny cracked: "It could have been worse. It could have been me."

Warner Grid All-Stars Play Nov. 22

The North-South All-Star game will bring down the curtain on Marin County Pop Warner Football this season when the select squads battle at College of Marin Stadium Nov. 22 at 2 p.m.

In regular season play, the San Rafael Junior Bulldogs and Redwood Junior Giants wound up as co-champions. The tie for the title resulted when San Rafael scored a come-from-behind victory, 13-12, over the Tamalpais Junior Indians last Wednesday on the Hamilton Air Force Base field. San Rafael scored the winning touchdown with six minutes remaining in the final quarter.

Scoring summary of that game:

San Rafael	7	0	0	6	13
Tamalpais	0	6	0	6	12

San Rafael scoring: Don Penales, 8-yard run; PAT—Penales, run. Dave Bariski, 5-yard run; PAT—run failed.

Tamalpais scoring: Ronnie Small, 7-yard run; PAT — run failed. Jim Page, 5-yard pass from Dennis Mackin; PAT—run failed.

Good Show, But Tars Bow To Santa Rosa Champs

By PAUL MILLER

SANTA ROSA—Despite a 39-15 defeat by the Golden Valley Conference Champion Santa Rosa Bear Cubs last night, the College of Marin Tars can hold their heads up today.

It was a good show all the way, even in the third period when there was no scoring, and even at halftime when Marin won the chariot race.

The contest included spectacular—circus—passing and running plays, exemplary goal-line stands by Marin defenders, and few penalties. But out of all this action stood one big play that set everybody's mouth ajar except Tar coach Dick Read's.

It was Marin's single offensive play in the first quarter and it was a beaut. With six minutes left in the period, Santa Rosa finally scored after driving its horses from the Bear Cub 26 yard line. Tar wingback Craig Bond ran the kickoff back to his own 35 and everybody was ready for Marin to struggle through four plays and give up the ball.

But after the snap, quarterback Les Wisner faked around in the backfield, waited for Bond to evade the Bear Cub safety and then Wisner let fly. Swift Bond was free by some 10 yards down at the Santa Rosa 25. The crowd sprang to its feet. The pass wobbled, it was short. Craig turned and went back after it. He caught it, still had some six yards running start, and sped on to score a touchdown.

Santa Rosa somehow no longer appeared so cocky.

(The Cubs expected to win and so they should have. They were undefeated defending champions. Marin was fielding one of the weakest — but not heartless—squads in the conference. And so with the season at an end, Santa Rosa is champ with a 5-0 count, and Marin is a loser with a 1-4 mark.)

Santa Rosa scored two more times before the Tars were able to muster a successful offensive series again. It came late in the second quarter. Santa Rosa had kicked off after putting the score at 21-7.

The Tars startled the Cubs on the first down when halfback Rich Bottini cut loose out of a middle line draw play and raced 70 yards to the Santa Rosa 11. He almost went all the way, but was clobbered by fast Cub safety Jim Lance.

Wisner scored after six plays and a first down. He sneaked in from the one yard line. Wisner passed to Bruce Thompson for the PAT. The score was 21-15.

From this point on the game was a gigantic defensive struggle for Marin. And actually the Marin defense gave up only one TD to Santa Rosa during the remainder of the contest. The other two scores were the fault of the Tar offense. A touchdown in the final seconds of the second period came after Marin fumbled on its one yard line and Santa Rosa recovered.

Another touchdown was the result of an interception of a Marin pass at the Tar 20. The defense was pushed back for the other touchdown in the fourth quarter, the same period the fatal interception came.

But the Tar defenders stiffened by linebacker Bill McIntyre and the outweighed but tough middle line, forced Santa Rosa to run 16 successive plays over 65 yards before the TD.

During that series Tar safety Tom Corbett, an outstanding player of the game, was injured and benched.

Other top players for Marin were Jerry Foster, Steve Minutoli, John Handly, Dave Cericola, Bob Phillips, Pat Haven and Bob Washington.

For Santa Rosa, it was Lance and hard running Gary Lindsay, among others.

Symbolic of the spirit of the Marin squad was Washington's kickoff run back during the last seconds of the fourth quarter. He went like the 49ers' Abe Woodson, regardless of the hopelessness of even making the score look decent. Washington ripped his way behind heady blockers to nearly midfield after catching the ball inside his own four. It was a spirited futile run, but it was symbolic.

Coaches for the season were Read, the boss, and Jim McGowan and Ed Grimm, both assistants. "All conference" cheerleader, working his last junior college game, was Paul Molinari.

SANTA ROSA	14	13	0	12	—39
MARIN	7	8	0	0	—15

Santa Rosa Scoring — First quarter; Lindsay, one-yard run; Vulich, PAT kick. Lindsay, 40-yard run; Vulich, PAT kick. Second quarter: Hole, 34-yard run; Vulich, PAT kick. Vaughn, one-yard run. Fourth quarter: Vaughn, one-yard run. McAllister, nine-yard run.

Marin Scoring—First quarter: Wisner to Bond, 65-yard pass; Wisner, PAT kick. Second quarter: Wisner, one-yard run; Wisner to Thompson, PAT pass.

PLUCKY PUCKSTERS READY FOR ACTION

Raydine Junior Ice Hockey Club of Marin opens the new junior hockey season next weekend with a game at Santa Rosa. Suited up and working out at the San Anselmo ice rink are George Jackson, Steve Innes and Dan Devicq, members of the Bantam team, composed of boys 14 and under. Also in training for the season at Raydine are the PeeWee players, 12 and under, and the Pony team, 10 and under, whose newest member is 5-year-old Allen Schramm. Coached by Bob Young and Wayland Bonbright, the Marin club is scheduled to play teams from San Francisco, Santa Rosa, Walnut Creek, Berkeley, Stockton and Sacramento. (Ken Molino photo)

49er Rookies On Spot Vs. Packers Tomorrow

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A pair of rookies will be in the San Francisco backfield tomorrow when the 49ers try to end a five-game losing streak against the visiting Green Bay Packers.

George Mira, flashy freshman quarterback from Miami, will start in place of veteran John Brodie as Coach Jack Christiansen searches for a spark to ignite the punchless 49ers.

He'll be joined by Dave Kopay, drafted as a free agent after starring at Washington. Kopay will replace Bill Kilmer as a starting halfback.

A third rookie, fullback Gary Lewis, is expected to see considerable action after impressing in San Francisco's 24-7 defeat by Minnesota last weekend.

Even if the new combination clicks, the changes could be in vain unless the 49ers stop Packer fullback Jim Taylor.

Taylor led Green Bay to a 24-14 victory when the two teams met earlier this season, gaining 133 yards and scoring the winning touchdown on a 24-yard jaunt in the third period.

Fully recovered from a pinched neck nerve, Taylor has moved into second place among National Football League rushers. He's gained more than 100 yards in his last two games.

Christiansen's switch to Mira has the look of desperation. Spectacular but highly erratic — that's been the rookie's performance.

In his limited appearances, Mira has completed 13 of 36 passes for two touchdowns, including a 79-yard bomb to Dave Parks in San Francisco's 24-7 loss to Minnesota last week.

At the same time, he's yielded five interceptions and fumbled three times in crucial situations.

The 217-pound Kopay is being given a chance to beef up the almost nonexistant 49ers ground game. Kilmer, also a passing threat, will see spot action.

Kickoff at Kezar Stadium is set for 1:05 p.m.

Randol

Now I've heard everything. Scraping around in the bottom of the barrel, the San Francisco 49ers have come up with a new running back who "looks good, has all the moves, good balance, and should make the club go."

This stellar performer, this star of stars, this unsung hero, is none other than Rudy Johnson. Echo answers, "Rudy who?" Or whom? And the reply comes, "Rudy Johnson of Nebraska, all 5-11 and 195 pounds of him."

Trouble is, Echo forgets to reverberate the information that this Rudy Johnson is a 49er fifth choice draftee who couldn't make the squad and then, horror of horrors, reported to the New York Jets of that other league and couldn't make THAT team.

Frankly, I thought it would be another five years before any National Football League team would stoop to sign a player from the American Football League, even if he was outstanding. But to take a castoff!

Mistakes have been made before, and I'm sure that some potentially great players have never had their names appear on a major league roster. No one can ever forget that Johnny Unitas was pulled from the scrap heap to become the top quarterback in the NFL.

I can go along with the hope that Johnson makes it big. But I can't go along with the tub-thumping that tries to build him up before he even has his name on a contract.

AS A MATTER of fact, this is the time of the year that I am glad that I am a columnist and not the public relations directors of the Niners. Sheesh! Imagine trying to convince the paying public that they should come out and root the 49ers to victory over the Green Bay Packers at Kezar tomorrow. That, my frfiend, is like rooting for a steer at the slaughter house.

Rumor has it that Coach Jack Christiansen will give his rookies a chance to get some experience in the Packer game. I would say it is about time. When the horse has left the stable, I believe it a waste of time to fool around trying to fix the lock. Better to look for a new horse. Or horses.

NO DOUBT the non-existent turf of Kezar will be firmly based in mud, and it is to be hoped that this will serve as some kind of equalizer. Hope springs eternal. One thing is sure, we can't win 'em all.

George Mira and Dave Kopay get their first chance to start tomorrow, and seem to be thrilled by the prospect. These two should have had this opportunity two or three games ago, not against the Packers. Well, rots o' ruck!

Raiders, Houston In Aerial Circus

OAKLAND (AP)—An aerial circus looms tomorrow when the Oakland Raiders entertain Houston's Oilers.

The last two times these American Football League rivals have met, they've combined for 171 points, almost all via the pass. Houston leads the league in passing yardage, with Oakland second.

In their first clash this season, the Oilers rolled to a 42-28 victory. They've won only one other game this season and bring a 2-7 record, the Eastern Division's worst, into the game.

The Raiders, Western Division tail-enders with a 1-7-1 record, have slipped badly from last season's 10-4 record but still feature an exciting air attack triggered by Cotton Davidson.

The league's top two pass receivers will be in action. Houston's Charlie Hennigan has hauled in 60 for 1,010 yards and five touchdowns. Raider end Art Powell has caught 48 for 882 yards and six tallies.

Rookie Sid Blanks figures prominently in Coach Sammy Baugh's volatile Oiler offense. He's fifth in the league in rushing and pass receiving.

The Raiders have lost prize rookie linebacker Bill Budness to injuries. Powell and guard Wayne Hawkins also have been injured but will see action.

The kickoff is 1:30 p.m.

PRO GRID ROUNDUP

Extra Effort By Browns

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Browns—both Cleveland and Jimmy—have more than the usual reasons for putting out with an extra effort tomorrow when their game against Detroit will be among those sharing top billing on the pro football program.

The effort of the Buffalo Bills to remain unbeaten while playing Boston also is a feature.

Cleveland, leading the Eastern Conference of the National Football League by two games, never has beaten Detroit in a regular season game. Jimmy Brown, the pace-setter's star halfback, needs only 66 yards to become a 1,000-yard ground gainer for the sixth time.

The Lions, with a 5-3-1 record compared to Cleveland's 7-1-1, will be hampered, though, because linebacker Joe Schmidt is out with a shoulder separation.

Baltimore, the NFL's Western Conference leader, will be seeking to avenge an opening game setback at the hands of the Minnesota Vikings. The Colts have won eight in a row since the early loss. Minnesota is 5-4.

The St. Louis Cards, Eastern Conference runners-up, also will be looking to get even. Their target will be the disappointing New York Giants, last year's conference champs, who surprised with a 34-17 thumping in Yankee Stadium two weeks ago.

Buffalo, with a 9-0 record, is the only unbeaten team in pro football and has a sizable lead in the American League's Eastern Division. But the Bills still are smarting from last year's beating by Boston in the playoff for the divisional title. The Patriots have a second- place 6-2-1 record this season.

Paul Lowe, one of San Diego's big guns, is a doubtful starter for the Chargers against the Kansas City Chiefs. The Chargers, 6-2-1 head the AFL's Western Division while the Chiefs have split eight decisions.

Other games pair Dallas and Philadelphia, Los Angeles and Chicago, Pittsburgh and Washington, and Green Bay and San Francisco in the National League. In the AFL, it's New York against Denver and Houston vs. Oakland.

South American 'Marciano' Impresses In N. Y. Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — He looks like Rocky Marciano, he punches to the body like Marciano, but he doesn't hit as hard as the former heavyweight champion.

That's a quick sizeup of Oscar Bonavena, the undefeated heavy from Buenos Aires, who won his seventh straight last night with a one-sided 10-round decision over Dick Wipperman of Sloan, N.Y. in the main event at Madison Square Garden.

Marciano saw the fight from ringside and said afterwards of the South American: "I like him very much, but it's hard to judge against a guy on defense."

Judges Bill Recht and Joe Armstrong scored it a 10-0 sweep for Bonavena who turned pro only last January. Referee Petey Della had it 8-2 giving the last two rounds to the lad from the Buffalo, N.Y. suburbs. Wipperman opened a cut under Bonavena's right eye in the ninth and made Oscar give ground in the 10th with sharp jabs.

Bonavena's next fight may be against big 6-foot-8 Jim Beattie of St. Paul who stopped Wipperman in the seventh round of their Garden go last month.

The crowd of 6,062 got a bigger kick of the scheduled 10-round semifinal in which Billy Stephan of St. Louis knocked out Ski Goldstein of San Diego, Calif. in 2:41 of the seventh round. It was Goldstein's first defeat after nine straight knockouts and on many occasions it seemed he had Stephan on the verge of going down.

Semi-Pro Baseball Washed Out—Again

For the third week in a row, the Marin County Semi-Pro Winter Baseball League will have to hold off its scheduled games tomorrow. All baseball fields where the games were to be played have been termed "unplayable" because of the storm.

The Hubbs award "for excellence and exemplary conduct on and off the field" will be among annual citations at the chapter's diamond dinner, next to be held Jan. 10.

Seals Blow Lead, Bow To Canucks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks spotted San Francisco Seals a 3-0 first period lead, then went on to take a 7-6 overtime victory before 2,715 fans in a Friday night Western Hockey League game.

Phil Maloney led the Canucks with two goals and two assists which shot him into the league scoring race lead. Bill Burega, Bob McCusker, Jim Baird, Bev Bell and Bob Kabel were other Canuck scorers.

San Francisco's goals came from Del Topell, who had a pair, Nick Mickoski, Wayne Connelly, Al Nicholson and Len Haley.

Bob Kabel scored the winning goal at 8:23 of the overtime period, deflecting a shot from the point by Ron Matthews past Seals' goalie Bob Perreault.

Seals jumped to a 3-0 first period lead, then hung on in the second period for a 5-4 margin before Canucks clicked in the final period to even it up.

Bell sent the game into overtime combining with Les Hunt and Matthews at 17:43 of the third period.

Oilers Grid Team Plane In Trouble

HOUSTON (AP) — A charter airliner carrying the American Football League Houston Oiler team to Oakland, Calif., returned to Houston International Airport today after one engine stopped and another had trouble.

Crash trucks and ambulances greeted the team, coaches and sports writers when the four-engine plane landed. It had first circled the area dumping fuel.

Another plane was to take the team to Oakland for the game Sunday.

Oiler defensive back Fred Glick commented on the safe landing:

"Well, we finally broke our losing streak."

The Oilers have lost six straight games.

Baseball Figures At Hutchinson Funeral

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — A host of baseball personalities joined others today in paying final tribute to Fred Hutchinson, former major league pitcher and manager who died of cancer at the age of 45.

Those attending the funeral include Dick Sisler, who replaced Hutchinson when the poker-faced manager no longer was able to pilot the Cincinnati Reds, pitcher Jim O'Toole and catcher John Edwards.

Sisler will serve as an honorary pallbearer. Joining him will be William DeWitt, president of the Reds, Cincinnati coaches Jim Turner and Reggie Otero; Walter (Hoot) Evers, former teammate of Hutchinson and now vice president of the Cleveland Indians, George (Birdie) Tebbetts, Cleveland manager and Hank Greenberg, a Hall of Famer and Hutchinson's teammate with the Detroit Tigers.

The National League was represented by Frank Slocum, a league executive.

Burial will be early next week in Renton, Wash.

Is Church Outweighed By Dollars In Voter's Eye?

By JEFF GREER

The dollar—not the church nor morality — is what sways the vote of the average Californian.

That is why Proposition 14 passed, despite "the most massive church attack in history," opined the Rev. Donald H. Schilling, co-pastor of St. Andrew Presbyterian Church in Marin City.

Rev. Schilling is a leader in behalf of Marin County minority groups. He has put his personal safety on the line by twice joining "freedom" projects in the racial turmoil of Mississippi.

He feels that a number of lessons could be drawn from the California voters' approval of Proposition 14.

The proposition repealed the state's Rumford ("fair housing") Act and forbade state or local governments to enact any law limiting the individual property owner's "right of self-determination" whether or not to sell or rent property to any person.

Civil rights groups have planned court efforts to save the Rumford Act, and to get Proposition 14 thrown out.

REV. DON H. SCHILLING
How influential is Church?

The the damage is already done to race relations in California, Rev. Schilling suggested.

"The tragedy of the election is that, regardless of what happens in the courts, the Negro in California knows what two-thirds of the people think" about living next door to a member of a minority group, the pastor explained.

"I think—in spite of the fact that a really compelling case can be made to show there would be no economic problems in a neighborhood if the realtors would just cooperate--that the people's fears are still there," he said.

"On issues that really matter, it isn't the church or some moral force that decides the voter. It's economic factors," Rev. Schilling declared.

The clergyman was asked what effect he thought Proposition 14 would have on integration efforts in the Deep South.

"I haven't had time to give much thought to it. . . .

"I don't think it will alter the reception for outsiders joining the movement, as far as the Negro community is concerned," said the minister. "The Negroes' past suspicions are surmounted already. You're working at the grass roots there.

"The one thing that it will do," he mused, "is make even more antagonistic the reception the outsider will get from the white.

"I was spending quite a bit of time trying to talk to the power structure" in rural Batesville during his Mississippi stay in August, Rev. Schilling recalled.

"They told me we were just a bunch of hypocrites. Certainly, there is an element of truth in this," he commented. The white Southerner claims that in California and in the North "we give the Negro just enough of his rights to make him think he's really got something." The Southerner claims, instead, that he really cares about and for the Negro.

"It's interesting the way they escape their problems by pointing to us — and we point to them," the pastor said.

"I think the passage of Proposition 14 will make it tough" to deal with segregationist factions in the South, Schilling repeated.

The clergyman recalled a visit to the manager of a national industry's branch factory — a hosiery mill in Batesville.

"This fellow was the most belligerent of all — he finally forced us to leave his offices. 'We take far better care of the Negro than you do,' he told us," Schilling said. The minister said the white industrial executive told of how a number of his Negro workers had "left for the promised land — Chicago" but soon called their former employer to help them get home.

Rev. Schilling repeated his belief that economics, rather than religious or moral suasion, holds the key to civil rights.

"We've seen this through the South," he explained. "Any civil rights group that wants to deal realistically with the problem must deal through economics."

He cited the Negroes' Christmas boycott in Jackson, Miss., as an effective example. "They decided there'd be no Christmas gifts this year, they wouldn't buy any Christmas trees, or anything else from the white stores.

"And, do you know, it was the best Christmas ever!"

The minister explained that the unified action gave the Negroes a realization of their importance in the economy of the community.

"But the Negroes are really going to have to join together," Schilling added. "There's such fear in the Negro community." He cited firings of Negroes who registered to vote.

He told of Negro sharecroppers fearfully asking him to leave their little farms, so they wouldn't get in trouble with landlords, and of how sharecropping, a form of peonage, keeps the Negro always in debt. "And if they run away, they get brought back and put in jail for owing the money," Schilling said.

The freedom worker told of visiting a small, rural Negro church in an area as yet untouched by civil rights workers.

"The choir director of the church came up to me while I was standing out in front before the meeting began.

"She said to me, 'What are you going to do for us after we get our church burned down tonight?' "

"You know — that's awfully hard to answer."

On the encouraging side, Rev. Schilling cited reports that Proposition 14 lost by 400 votes in Sausalito—nearest neighbors to predominantly Negro Marin City.

The minister noted that Bay Area rights organizations are beginning to organize a clearing house of information on properties where minority members will be welcomed to buy or rent. He voiced hope that Marin County clergymen and congregations will be able to join in an effective program, but "most of us are still smarting and licking our wounds" from the Proposition 14 election.

Schilling argued that "the church got started late in civil rights movements — and very late in the case of most civil rights workers, who are anti-church." Even though the church was not tardy in the case of Proposition 14, much damage had already been done by earlier inaction on other issues, he suggested.

"I disagree with the comments I've heard over and over" that the voters were confused about Proposition 14, Schilling commented. Many persons, he noted, claim that the anti-fair housing faction won because of "shrewdness and deceit" of propaganda.

"I don't believe a word of that. To the contrary, I'm convinced that there has never been legislation so much before the public.

"I'm fully convinced that, although many didn't really understand, most of the voters knew what was at stake — and acted according to their own motives, mainly economic rather than religious or moral.

"We might as well face up to this," Rev. Schilling concluded.

Church Membership Taking Downturn

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

For nearly 15 years following the end of World War II, churches had it pretty easy.

They didn't have to go out and search for lost sheep. It was sufficient to throw open the gate of the sheepfold and count them as they poured in.

Nearly everybody, it seemed, was joining a church. Membership figures soared at a rate three times as fast as population growth. Sunday schools were so swamped with children they had to schedule double sessions and hold classes in the hallways.

Some churchmen called it a religious revival. Others said that belonging to a church had become a social asset—a way of meeting people in a new community—or simply a fad.

Perhaps there was some truth to both viewpoints. Anyone who witnessed the church boom close-up could see that there was a lot of superficiality in it. On the other hand, he also could see that many people had come to church sincerely seeking a faith to live by.

Whatever it was—revival or fad—it appears to be over.

People are still joining and attending churches, as they always have and always will.

But it's no longer "the thing to do." Those who have no real interest in religion can now ignore it without fear of being subjected to social ostracization, or even to raised eyebrows.

The waning of the church boom can be seen in membership statistics, which have been rate slightly less than the overall growth in population.

But the most dramatic evidence is a sharp decline in the number of infant baptisms recorded by several major Protestant denominations.

The Methodist magazine for ministers, Christian Advocate, this week published a comprehensive study of baptism statistics conducted by the Rev. Lyle E. Schaller. There are some of his findings:

In the Methodist Church — The largest Protestant denomination which practices infant baptism—the number of babies baptized declined from 212,799 in 1959 to 163,572 in 1963 — a drop of 23 per cent over a four-year period.

During this period, he notes, there was no significant change in the number of babies born in America each year.

The United Presbyterian Church registered an 18 per cent decrease in infant baptisms over the same four years. Baptisms in the Evangelical United Brethren Church were down by 16 per cent, and in the Reformed Church of America, by 13 per cent.

For two other denominations —the Episcopal Church and the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod—the evidence of a decline is not so clear-cut. The number of infant baptisms in these churches has fluctuated during the past four years, with a fairly sharp rise in 1961, and a decline since then.

Depsite these deviations, the Rev. Mr. Schaller feels that the statistics demonstrate a "sharply downward trend" in infant baptisms in mainline Protestant bodies.

There is similar evidence from two major denominations which defer baptism until a child is at least 12 or 13 years of age. The Disciples of Christ registered a 30 per cent drop in baptisms since 1959. The Southern Baptist Convention had no downturn until last year, when it reported a 7 per cent decline in baptisms.

The deeper question is whether this is a development to be deplored, or whether in the long run it may lead to a sounder and more genuine religious revival. True religion has always flourished best in the atmosphere of freedom. And subtle social pressures can be a inimical to voluntary choice as government coercion.

In any case, it seems plain that churches can no longer sit back and wait for people to come to them. They are going to have to renew their acquaintance with some of the verbs which Christ was always using: verbs such as "go," "seek," and "bring."

Mormons' Highest Official To Visit Oakland Temple

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—David O. McKay, 91-year-old president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, is scheduled to help dedicate the church's new temple in Oakland Nov. 17-19.

President McKay has recovered from a recent heart ailment that hospitalized him for several weeks.

McKay is scheduled to give the dedicatory prayer at the first dedication session Tuesday morning. It will be repeated at each of the other five services during the three-day dedication.

Accompanying the church president will be his two counselors, Hugh B. Brown and N. Eldon Tanner. Many other general authorities of the church also will attend the rites.

REVIVAL LEADER—Conducting special revival services at the San Rafael Assembly of God Church next week will be the Rev. Don Merrill of Los Angeles. Services Tuesday through Friday will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the church at 517 D Street, and on Sunday, Nov. 22, Rev. Merrill will preach and sing in services beginning at 7 p.m.

Southern Baptist Conclave Votes To Sell Campus

LONG BEACH (AP)—The Southern Baptist Convention of California has decided to sell the 70-acre Riverside campus of California Baptist College to a land developer for 4.5 million dollars and establish a new campus.

Delegates at the annual meeting Wednesday night voted to accept an option to sell the campus.

The church has one year to exercise the option and will have two years thereafter to relocate the college, which has an enrollment of 560. The convention also has a seminary at Strawberry, Marin County.

A spokesman said several sites are under consideration for a new Southern California campus of about 100 acres with buildings doubling the square footage of the existing structures in Long Beach.

The convention also approved a new headquarters building in Fresno, and let a $445,395 contract for the three-story structure. The facility will replace four locations in Fresno.

THANKSGIVING PROGRAMS DUE

All Marin County churches planning special Thanksgiving observances are asked to submit notes of their plans to the church editor, Independent-Journal, no later than Thursday, Nov. 19.

Cathedral's Dedication Next Week

Marin County church, civic and lay leaders will join high officials of the Episcopal Church in dedicating the first major Anglican cathedral to be completed in the United States at rites in San Francisco's Grace Cathedral next weekend.

The presiding bishop-elect of the Protest Episcopal Church of the United States, Rt. Rev. John Eldridge Hines of Texas, will preach the Consecration sermon next Friday at 10 a.m. The service will be preceded at 9:30 a.m. by a solemn procession including Marin County officials and representatives of the nine other counties in the diocese of California. Consular representatives from 10 foreign countries, members of the military services and other dignitaries will join the procession.

Public guided tours of the great structure, which has taken 54 years to complete, will be offered Saturday afternoon, Nov. 21, including such highlights as the famed Ghiberti "Golden Doors" and the Rose window by Gabriel Loire.

The three-day dedication program climaxes a 3-million-dollar building completion drive of the Golden Anniversary Fund committee.

Baha'i Will Observe Founder's Birthday

Members of Marin County's Baha'i community will commemorate the birth of Baha'u'llah with a public meeting at 8 p.m. today in the Jewish Community Center, 1618 Mission Avenue, San Rafael.

Nuns Sing Spirituals To Samba

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) Brazil's latest popular music sensation is a group of young Roman Catholic nuns who give a message of faith to a samba beat.

These swinging sisters from the Brazilian order of Missionary Sisters of Jesus Crucified presently are sweeping the nation with lively songs composed by a member of their order and sung by a 14-voice chorus from the order's convent in Rio. The chorus is backed up by a six-piece combo.

The sisters were discovered a year ago by the Rev. Joao Bedochi, well-known in the Brazilian music world for his boys' choir, the "Little Singers of Guanabara."

Father Bedochi heard the sisters singing while he was visiting their convent. Impressed, he investigated further and learned that the music was composed by Sister Irene Gomes of the Campinas Convent in Sao Paulo State.

Putting across a message of Christian charity and love to the popular rhythms of the day would be perfectly in accord with the order's goal to work "with one foot in the world and the other in the convent."

Father Bedochi won special permission from church authorities for the nuns to sing "profane" music in public. Since then they have become one of the most popular guest groups on local television.

A few weeks ago their first record was launched. Rio record shops reported it was one of the fastest moving discs.

The Missionary Sisters is a Brazilian order formed in 1928.

SINGING SISTERS OF BRAZIL—Perhaps soon to rival Canada's famed musical nuns are the samba-singing Missionary Sisters of Jesus Crucified in Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, of which guitar-playing Sister Isabel and "cabaca" gourd player Sister Maria de Jesus are members. Already a hit on South American television, the group has made records of its lively spiritual songs that are becoming best sellers in Latin America. (AP Wirephoto)

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

You're Not Going To Cure Your Arthritis By Moving To Tropics

VAN DELLEN

The caption, "Arthritic? Move to the Tropics," caught my eye recently. It headed a synopsis of an article on the low incidence of rheumatoid arthritis in a Puerto Rican community. Dr. Ricardo Mendez-Bryan and associates surveyed the population and report a rate of .92, compared with 5.4 in this country. Only 3,885 people live in the island area (Guaynabo) and the study did not include other diseases that might have been more prevalent and equally disabling.

There may not be many arthritics in Guaynabo but this does not mean a victim will be cured if he moves to Puerto Rico. Furthermore, physicians in this area may have little or no experience treating rheumatoid arthritis because it occurs so infrequently.

MANY PEOPLE GO to the Southwest when they develop a stubborn case of arthritis. The warm dry air has a soothing effect but the climate cannot produce miracles. Physicians in this region use the same medicines as their colleagues in other parts of the United States.

For best results, treatment should be started early. A new urine test to detect the disease may prove to be the answer to early diagnosis. There is no magic cure but a variety of things can be done to reduce inflammation, pain, stiffness, and deformity.

A WELL BALANCED diet helps maintain resistance, and weight reduction is important in the obese. The individual has a fight on his hands and should do everything possible to preserve the involved joints to avoid deformities.

Keep the structures flexible by moving them through their full range of motion several times a day. Take it easy if much soreness persists after exercise. Activity also helps to build up weakened muscles, an important consideration because muscles lend support to joints and when either structure is ailing, the other suffers.

(Dr. Van Dellen will send leaflet on rheumatoid arthritis if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

POSTURAL AND VOCAL PROBLEMS

Mrs. J. G. writes: I am round-shouldered and speak with a nasal twang. Am I too old at 28 to correct either or both conditions?

REPLY

You are not too old but it will be more difficult to correct the posture than the speech defect. Do you have a nasal obstruction caused by polyps or adenoids?

BLURRED VISION

M. E. writes: My eyesight has been blurry for the last month or so. Is there a vitamin I can take to clear this up?

REPLY

Perhaps, but this is unlikely. Vision is too precious to rely upon vitamins and suggestions from medical columnists. See your ophthalmologist because this symptom may be an early sign of a serious eye disorder.

SPECS WITH PRISMS

M. D. writes: My daughter writes me she went to an eye specialist and he prescribed glasses with prisms. What does this indicate about her eye condition?

REPLY

These glasses are prescribed for exercising weak eye muscles and to correct cross-eye due to weak or paralyzed eye muscles.

FRUSTRATED NEUROTIC

J. P. writes: Why can't a neurotic fulfill his desire and basic need for affection?

REPLY

Perhaps he never has learned how because of unfortunate childhood experiences. If we knew the answer to this question, we might uncover the secrets of mental illness.

Tower Times' Timid Times Just A Joke

The newspaper, Timid Tower, blossomed forth in gloomy glory at College of Marin in Kentfield yesterday. The occasion was Friday the 13th.

The joke edition, a take-off on the Tower Times, student newspaper, led off with a story announcing that College of Marin was being forced to merge with Santa Rosa Junior College.

Most of the issue was devoted to this report and the reactions, which included the resignation of 25 members of the faculty.

Gallinas Areas Center, Yacht Club Discussed

The Gallinas Village Community Services District and the Santa Venetia Yacht Club are considering a cooperative effort on the development of a combination community center and yacht club.

The district board had initial discussions on the proposal Thursday night, and appointed a committee to study it.

The proposed development would be on district property which now is the site of the pumping station along Gallinas Creek.

The board also heard a report from Robert Tanem who has prepared plans for improving Hacienda Way Park.

Sentencing of a Marin County resident and a Vallejo man in a complex real estate loan fraud was continued yesterday until Nov. 23 at 9:30 a.m. in Napa Superior Court.

Ross Eugene Kelly, 64, of 13 Hillside Avenue, Kentfield, entered a no-contest plea Oct. 29 to a charge of obtaining $91,000 from Silverado Savings and Loan in Napa by false statements. Robert E. Skinner, 42, of Vallejo, former manager of Silverado, also entered a no-contest plea to a charge that he accepted a $4,000 bribe to make the loans to Kelly.

Christian Unity Schema Approved

VATICAN CITY (AP) — With an overwhelming 1,870 to 82 vote, the Vatican Ecumenical Council approved today its Christian unity schema, clearing the way for its proclamation as a full church decree by Pope Paul VI. It pioneers a new path for Roman Catholic relations with other Christians.

The schema is the first to be completed in this third council session.

Council fathers in St. Peter's Basilica approved minor textual adjustments in the third and final chapter of the schema "De Ecumenismo" (on ecumenism) with the vote.

It is likely the Pope will promulgate it as a decree before the council recesses a week from today.

The 12, chosen from 30 who tried out, are: Sue Berry, Nancy Schnell, Paula Malvino, Sue Vanderhoof, Lynn Hamilton, Denise Friend, Janet Prosser, Diane Wenger, Sandy Kaplan, Terry Horn, Debbie Dolman and Robin Colthurst.

Driver Fined

Robert Lee Howard, 36, of 35 Woodward Avenue, Sausalito, was fined $220 yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving. He was arrested Oct. 22 on Highway 101 by California Highway Patrol.

Probation Given In Car Deaths

A 17-year-old Novato boy, found guilty of manslaughter with negligence in the traffic death of three persons in San Francisco Aug. 29, was placed on probation yesterday by the San Mateo Juvenile Court.

Under the terms of probation, Daniel E. Gremlich was made a ward of the court, was denied his driving privilege with renewal only after court approval, was ordered to live at his father's home, work with his father, attend school full time and become active in a charitable organization to be specified by the court.

The boy is a son of Otto Gramlich of 831 Reichert Avenue, Novato and Mrs. Gramlich of Pacifica. The case was transferred from San Francisco to San Mateo County because the youth had moved there to live with his mother.

His car collided with a Volkswagen bus near the beach in San Francisco, killing three of the 10 occupants of the bus.

Crash Hurts Two Sailors

Two young sailors, one from Homestead Valley, were injured when their car crossed the road and crashed into a power pole on Shoreline Highway just north of Tennessee Valley Road at 4:30 a.m. today.

Driver was John R. Jahovic, 20, of the USS Galveston, who suffered a cut forehead and left eye, and Thomas W. H. Boomer, 19, of 202 Beryl Avenue, Homestead Valley, whose left ankle was injured.

Officials at Marin General Hospital, where the youths were first treated, said Jahovic may also have suffered a broken leg.

They were later transferred to Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco.

The California Highway Patrol said the youths were returning to Boomer's home after a party. The car, owned by Boomer's mother, Mrs. Virginia B. Miller, was demolished.

Johovic was cited for speeding and for driving on the wrong side of the road.

Hike Planned In JFK Memory

A San Rafael YMCA group will hike from Fairfax to Bolinas on Nov. 22 in memory of John F. Kennedy.

The hike is planned for the anniversary of the president's assassination by the Conspirator Hi-Y Club. Its 13 members are inviting others to join them, and hope to have 200 hikers on the trek, according to Dale Greenlee of the Marin YMCA staff.

President Kennedy started a fad for hikes in the spring of 1962 with suggestion that the 50-mile hikes required of Marin Corps recruits in the days of President Theodore Roosevelt should be revived.

$863 Securities, Checks Stolen

The Marin Saw Works at 24 La Goma Avenue, Mill Valley, was reported broken into during the night and $863 in securities, checks and cash stolen, police said today.

Harold L. Walton reported at 8:10 a.m. that his shop was entered, apparently by dislodging a hook lock from the rear door, between 6:30 p.m. yesterday and 8 a.m. today.

Taken, he said, were 200 shares of American Life Insurance Co. stocks, valued at $4.12 per share; two checks of $20 and $2.90, and $15 in bills and change. Walton lives at 799 Plaza Linda, Novato.

Two Given Fines For Drunken Driving

Hooray For Beatles, And Danny Thomas

By RICK du BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Danny Thomas and the Beatles squared off in opposing one-hour television specials last night, and it is a pity because both shows were worthy of attention. Thomas presented a first-rate variety program for family viewing. And the Beatles' hour, an entertainment documentary of their tour of America last winter, was great fun and skilfully constructed.

We will take up Thomas first, out of respect for age, though it is our opinion, as a non-admirer of the Beatles' singing but a definite admirer of their personal style, that last night's show about them was one of the notable events of the television season.

Thomas' NBC-TV guests were Dick Van Dyke, Juliet Prowse and his 12-year-old Italian singing protege, Piccola Pupa, and they were all, as the trade puts it, socko. But the key was Danny, a pleasure to see out of restricted situation comedy — a performer who, before a night-club audience, has long been one of the truly top storytellers and fine entertainers in the show business tradition.

Danny set the tone in a low key. He gagged up a little hoofing. He sang a bit and told some stories. Personally, all he really needs is a bare stage and a microphone, and the hour would go in a flash. But his manner as host gave last night's entry grace, solid professionalism and the sure mark of class. Van Dyke, of course, is incomparable, and his pantomimes were delightful. But I especially liked the story he told of his son's bedtime prayer the night before his family moved west from New York: "Well, God, goodbye, we're moving to California."

Now for the Beatles. Unlike the pedestrian, juiceless, middle-aged sedative entitled "Sophia Loren in Rome," which appeared on ABC-TV Thursday night and which was an embarrassing fairy tale for grownups of the MGM technicolor generation, "The Beatles in America" had vigor, reality and the joyous exuberance of ageless youth.

For those unfortunates who may have missed the Beatles' admirable movie "A Hard Day's Night," last night's CBS-TV hour gave an indication of the natural store of clowning in the quartet, especially in Ringo, who surely has one of the great faces of our time, with its blend of wistfulness and wild abandon, and a manner to match.

These boys are of such a clean appeal that it was a pleasure to watch them in action, especially since the music was kept secondary. Perhaps the moral of last night's effort, well narrated by Carol Burnett, was captured in a wild train ride from New York to Washington, D.C., when Ringo started taking pictures of the people who were taking pictures of the Beatles. The boys may be the No. 1 put-on artists since W. C. Fields.

Mariner Yacht Sales Suing

Mariner Yacht Sales at Gate 1 in Sausalito yesterday filed a $150,000 damage suit against a Rhode Island yacht corporation, its mother organization, and a former Mariner executive.

The suit names Pearson Yacht Corp., Bristol, R.I.; Grumman Allied Industries, and Howard C. Ellis Jr., former vice president of Mariner, as defendants.

It seeks $50,000 for breach of contract and $100,000 punitive damages.

Mariner alleges the defendants violated a written Feb. 28, 1963, contract by failing to fill orders taken by the plaintiff for sale of boats, and further that Ellis breached his own agreement with Mariner and obtained the franchise to sell Pearson boats, himself.

Mariner's suit declares this franchise was its sole asset and source of business revenue.

Meningitis Cases

How To Stage Auto Crash—For The Camera

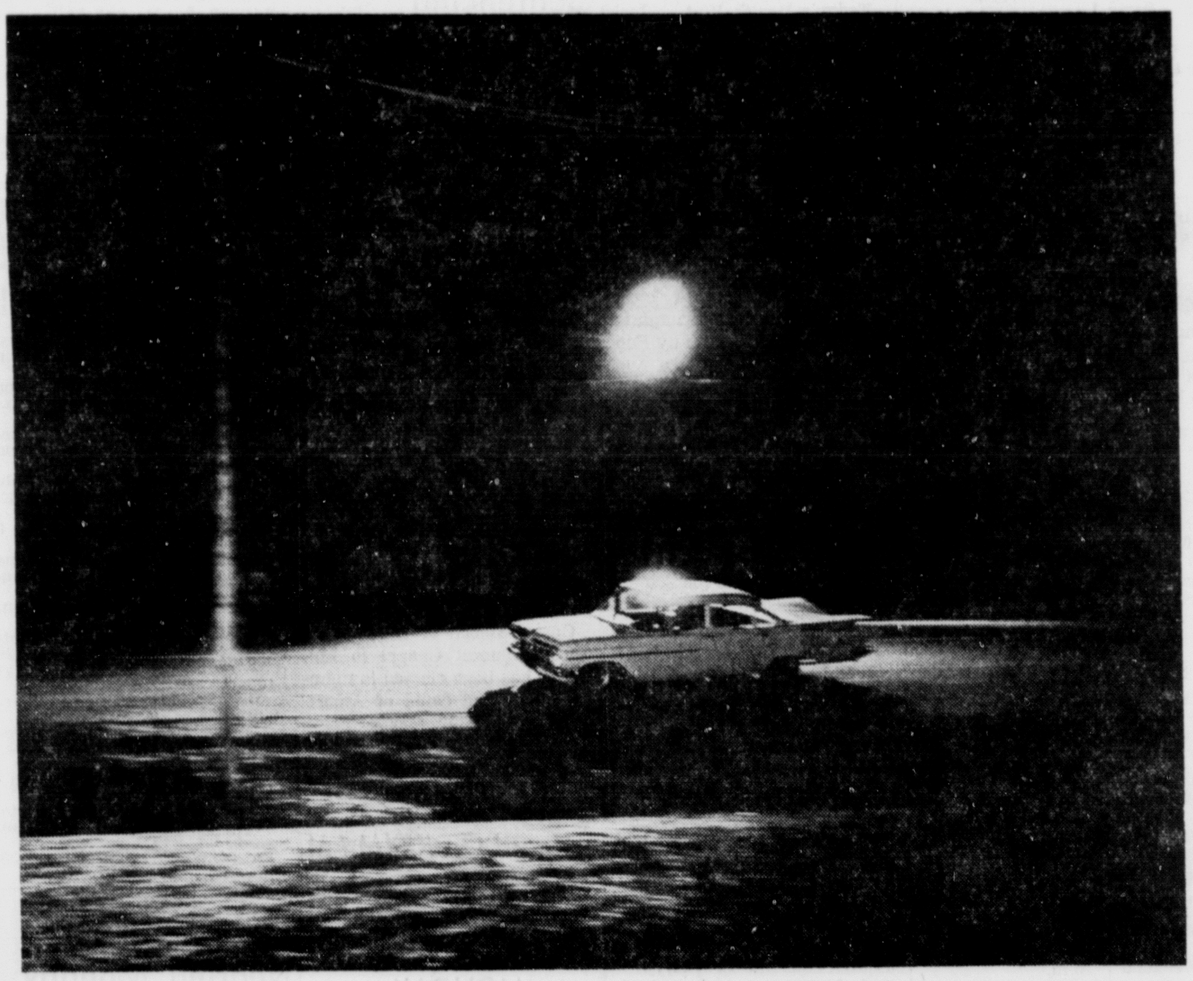
Photographer John H. Arms took this sequence of pictures. Three movie cameras ground throughout the "performance" which will be shown by the insurance company to emphasize the danger of dozing at the whee'.



U.S. Missile Lead Is 5-To-1 Over Russia

But Soviets Expected To Up Production

LONDON (UPI) — The United States now holds almost a 5-to-1 lead over the Soviet Union in intercontinental ballistic missiles, the authoritative British Institute for Strategic Studies reported today.

The institute warned, however, that the 1964-65 period may be the last in which Western superiority in long range strike power is so marked. It said the U.S. ICBM program will be substantially completed next year while the Soviets are expected to step up production.

The report said Communist China's detonation of a nuclear bomb does not alter Peking's basic military weakness.

925 MISSILES

The institute is a private corporation which works closely with official defense authorities in the Western Alliance.

The report said the United States will have 925 ICBMs by early next year, compared with 200-odd for the Soviet Union. The institute's estimate for early this year was 475 for the United States to 100 for the Soviets.

In fleet ballistic missiles, including the American Polaris and its less advanced Soviet counterpart, the U.S. superiority has more than doubled in the past 12 months, the report said. It increased from 2-to-1 to 4-to-1, according to the study.

The report said the Soviets continue to hold an overwhelming superiority in medium and intermediate range ballistic missiles with 750 of these weapons. They are aimed at Western Europe and Japan and are based near the western, southern and eastern borders of the Soviet Union, on the Pacific Coast and in Siberia.

1,400 BOMBERS

The Soviets also have about 1,400 medium range bombers, the report said, while Western strength in this category has been reduced by about 25 per cent during the past year. The West leads in long-range heavy bombers, 630 to 200.

In addition, the number of tactical nuclear weapons employed by the allies in western and southern Europe has increased by 60 per cent in the past three years, the report said.

Other data:

1. The Soviet Army now is believed to have about 140 divisions, of which only about 70 are at combat strength. The Russian Army is estimated to total 2.2 million men.

2. The total active army strength of the NATO forces is 3.12 million.

3. Red China can be expected to avoid those areas of conflict which could lead to a world war. But Peking may aid limited wars in Southern Asia.

4. There are no signs that the Sino-Soviet conflict has led to any withdrawal of Russian forces from its European satellites.

5. The Soviets are beefing up their navy, second largest in the world, with increasing attention on the submarine fleet. Russia is building about 10 nuclear-powered submarines a year.

6. The number of American nuclear-powered submarines will increase from 33 early this year to 54 in early 1965.

7. Russia spends 30 to 35 billion dollars a year for defense. The United States spends 50 billion dollars.

8. Communist China is unlikely to develop a missile delivery system for nuclear weapons in the foreseeable future.

9. The Chinese Army of 115 divisions and 2.25 million men is short of modern and heavy equipment. Most of its 2,300 planes are obsolete and spare parts are scarce. The Peking regime has about 28 submarines.

10. Soviet forces in Cuba have been reduced to below 3,000 men. But Cuba has modern weapons, including surface-to-surface missiles with a range of about 25 miles. There are 24 surface-to-air missile sites on Cuban soil, previously Soviet-manned but now believed to be under Cuban control. The Cuban Army is estimated at 90,000 men, equipped with modern anti-tank missiles and T-54 tanks. The Air Force is believed to have a substantial number of Soviet MIG jet fighter planes.

THE POTTER'S WHEEL spins in the garage of the Farhad Moezzi home near the Marin Civic Center, and the sensitive fingers of Moezzi fashion still another of the creative ceramics pieces which have earned for him a high reputation in art circles. The Talented Hands Of Farhad Moezzi

Marinite From Persia Practices And Teaches The Ancient Arts

But there dwells talented Farhad Moezzi, president of the Marin Society of Artists.

And there you find a garage crowded with 1964 American toys—tricycles, dolls and games —and the tools of country living —hoses, rakes, shovel and lawn mower.

And there, too, you find shelves upon shelves of the products of the ancient art of ceramics in varying stages of completion.

IN ONE CORNER there is a potter's wheel, another electric wheel nearby, and dozens of jars of pigment to put coloring into glazing. But the focal point in the cluttered space is a small, well-worn book about twice the size of a match book.

Here are verses in Persian from the 11th century Moslem poet, Omar Khayyam. And on every piece of artist Moezzi's work there is such a verse, used in stylized trim and carrying a religious message to all who can read Persian.

The shapes, sizes, colors and forms flow from the long fingered man as many as 10 in an hour. Each then undergoes 18 hours of firing and an additional firing to set the color glaze and the calligraphy of verse.

IN A STUDIO on the first floor of his home is equipment for sculpture — welding apparatus, power tools, quantities of metals and semi-precious stones for the making of jewelry. Outside in an enclosure built for the purpose is a massive kiln whose excessive temperatures reach 2200 degrees and which takes 18 hours to cool sufficiently to open the heavy iron door of the furnace.

From the amoeba of an idea through to welding or firing develops the fine art of sculpture, jewelry and ceramics.

Born in Teheran, Iran, in 1920 of well-to-do Persian parents, Farhad Moezzi was destined to become a scholar. Learning and inquiry was a prelude to art that escaped him until about a decade ago.

STEMMING from intellectual stock, his mother was a poetess and his father authored 32 volumes on political science. They lived on extensive property where the young son, Farhad, was sheltered from a rough life.

After graduating from the University of Teheran in archaeology at an early age, Farhad got permission from the Iranian government to conduct a scientific archaeological excavation near the site of Hecatompolis, property owned by his parents. Here his findings proved of value and challenge as he became aware of the many shortcomings in his archaeological knowledge.

Volunteering for service in the Archaeological Museum of Teheran, he was piqued for more and more learning and enrolled in the University of New Delhi where he studied Sanskrit, Avesta and cuneiform. Between semesters and during vacations the young student traveled throughout India and broadened his horizons into a knowledge of people.

"IT WAS NOT until I came to America in 1948 with the intention of enrolling at the University of California in ancient languages that my future was set and my home was found," the erect, mustachioed Moezzi says. "The university did not have courses I had not already had and, as my English was very limited, I enrolled in art, the universal language . . . at San Francisco State."

The luminous eyes accented his sincerity. "Now," the potter patted the 2,000-pound kiln as if it were an affectionate puppy, "this . . . this is an inseparable part of my life."

"Of course," he went on, "after Pat and Rameen and Mithra and Kambia."

Pat, Rameen, Mithra and Kambia are "his girls."

HIS WIFE, the former Patricia Friesen of Bakersfield, is as American as a peanut butter sandwich. Outgoing and gracious, she gives no hint of finding it unusual to be married to an Oriental Moslem.

"You like their names?" the artist asks. "I named them. 'Rameen' and 'Mithra' from some ancient verses and 'Kambia' I just made up!"

In 1953 he had received his master's degree in art at San Francisco State and by 1955 he had earned his first teaching credential followed shortly with his general secondary teaching credential. It was not only going to be art; it would be teaching art to others. And that's just what he has been doing ever since.

FOR THE PAST 10 years Moezzi's skill as a teacher as well as an artist is well known to the hundreds of students he has taught at San Rafael High School.

"I am very interested in helping young people to become creative," the educator says in perfect English. "Creativity increases in value as we move towards the conformity of mass production. I believe anyone can create and to create you can do anything. We are all Gods, really. How do I know just what or how much I can create unless I try? God made each one of us, whether you believe in your prophet, Jesus Christ, or our prophet, Mohammed; your Bible or our Koran. What is the difference? God created us all and we, too, can create."

Moezzi says he realizes it is entirely possible that a student can go through high school taking only one course in art or none at all. If they enter his classes, he tries to give them the greatest possible creative experience.

"I EXPECT them to create; not copy. I try to supply them with basic techniques which will be helpful all their lives no matter what occupations they follow," he says.

Students under this teacher can learn at least 10 casting techniques, including bronze casting, the formation of clay bodies, glazing and the fine art of jewelry-making. He is proud of the facilities at the school believing they equal or surpass many colleges in equipment.

As president of the Marin Society of Artists, Farhad Moezzi has a dream. Recognized for its fine administrative structure and forward programming, the Marin Society of Artists is a leader among art societies in the Bay Area.

"With the strength of cohesiveness in membership we should make the society one of the finest in the West. Why not?"

AND WITH characteristic serenity he shrugs his shoulders and rolls his big black eyes.

Another of Moezzi's dreams, which he has a knack of making come true, will be furthered tomorrow in the opening of a permanent Crafts Sales Display Unit at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. In the new wing of the Frances Young Gallery will be an area for display and sale of sculpture, ceramics and jewelry. Juried as is all art in the gallery, the crafts unit is the result of many requests from art patrons.

With spring and fall rental shows offering paintings and graphics for rent and for sale and the new crafts area showing topnotch crafts for sale, the gallery will have an excellent composite of art available to the community throughout the year.

THE SMART looking new unit was designed by Eleanore Bender, Bill Norton and Thomas Loebsack and was constructed by Thomas Loebsack. All are dedicated members of the Marin Society of Artists.

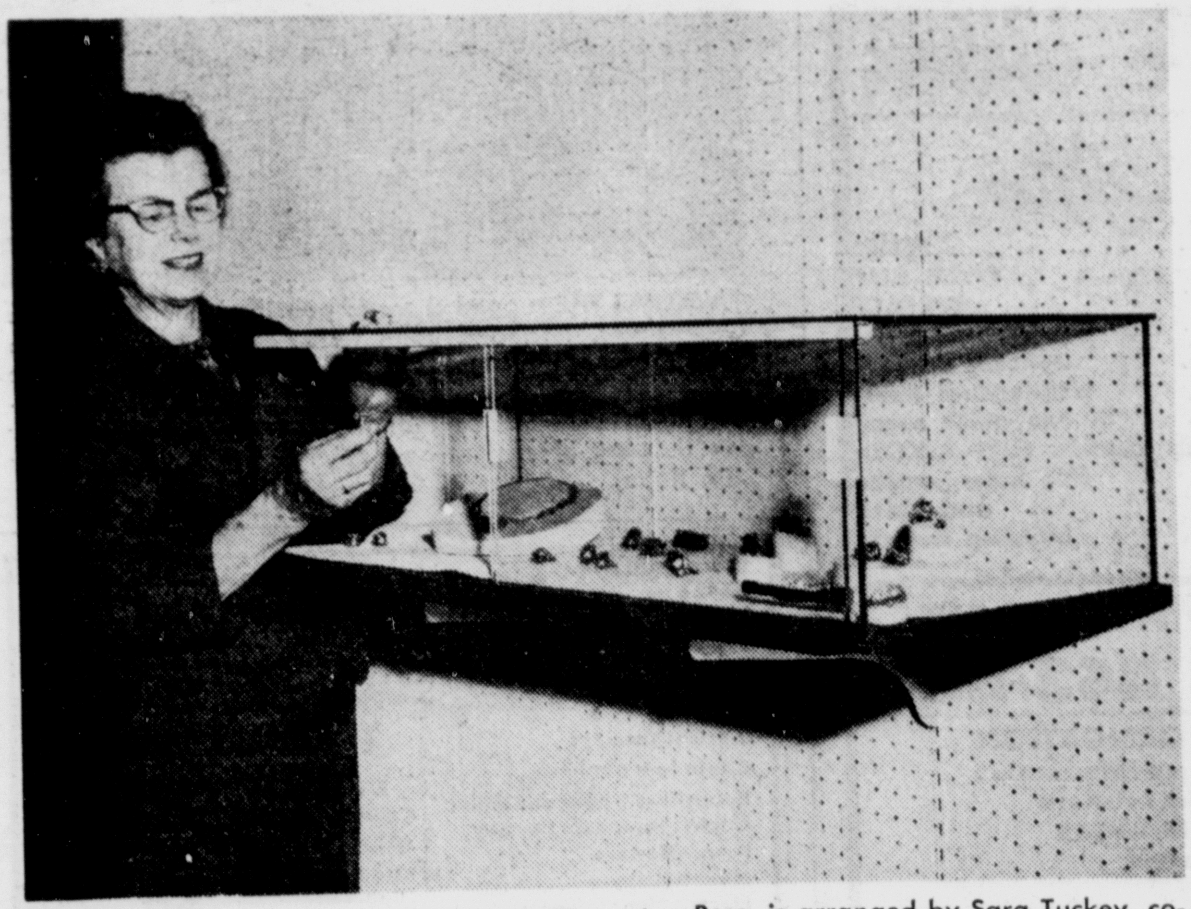
In 10 short years, through formal education and self teaching, Farhad Moezzi has learned his art. But he has only begun. There are books. There are people. There is life.

He intends to use them all and teach others what he has learned. He is a practicing artist, a practicing teacher, and a practicing scholar.

He lives up to his beliefs: "Create! You can do anything!"



A SHOWCASE for the new permanent Crafts Sales Display Unit of the Marin Society of Artists at the Frances Young Gallery in the Marin Art and Garden Center, Ross, is arranged by Sara Tuckey, co-chairman of the unit which opens tomorrow. It is one of the pet projects of Farhad Meozzi as president of the Marin Society of Artists.

Skiers Turn Carpenters

Sports Enthusiasts Take Up The Hammer And Saw

Some members of the Marin Ski Club spent more time in the Sierra this summer than they do in the winter months.

And they took along with them, not skis and ski poles, but hammers and saws.

The Marin club's membership was continuing its project, begun two years ago, of building a ski lodge just east of Soda Springs along Highway 40.

THE FINISHED lodge, as designed by Walter Stevens of Mill Valley and Charles Massen of Larkspur, will consist of two juxapositioned A-frames. One A-frame houses sleeping and kitchen quarters, the other the lounging and recreation facilities.

Two years ago the initial A-frame for sleeping and cooking was completed, and use of the lodge began.

This past summer, the second A-frame with fireplace was virtually finished.

Completion of the building project is scheduled for next summer.

WORK CREWS of Marin Ski Club members visited the lodge site every other weekend through the warm weather months. When cement deliveries were scheduled for mid-week, some of the dedicated skiers took days-off from their jobs to be on hand and do the work.

Along with the labor has come the problem of financing the cost of the materials.

As one means of raising the needed monies to meet their loans, the ski club is sponsoring a showing of the Dick Barrymore film, "Snow Motion," at the Sequoia Theater in Mill Valley this coming Tuesday. There will be two showing of the 90-minute movie—at 6:30 and at 9 p.m.—which shows the action in the 1964 Winter Olympics at Innsbruck along with other major ski events.

THIS WINTER, the 90 enthusiasts who make up the membership of the Marin Ski Club will be making extensive recreational use of their nearly completed ski lodge and the inviting slopes nearby.

Then, when the snow melts, they will once again set aside their skis, and take up hammers and saws, ready for that last big push for the completion of their "do-it-yourself" construction project.

TACKLING THE rugged chore of pouring cement are Dean Greenstreet, left, and John Kerby-Miller of the Marin Ski Club, as they labor at the organization's new lodge near Soda Springs. Some of the Marin skiers took days-off from their jobs so that they could be on hand for the delivery of cement and other materials. (Photos by Jim Kean)

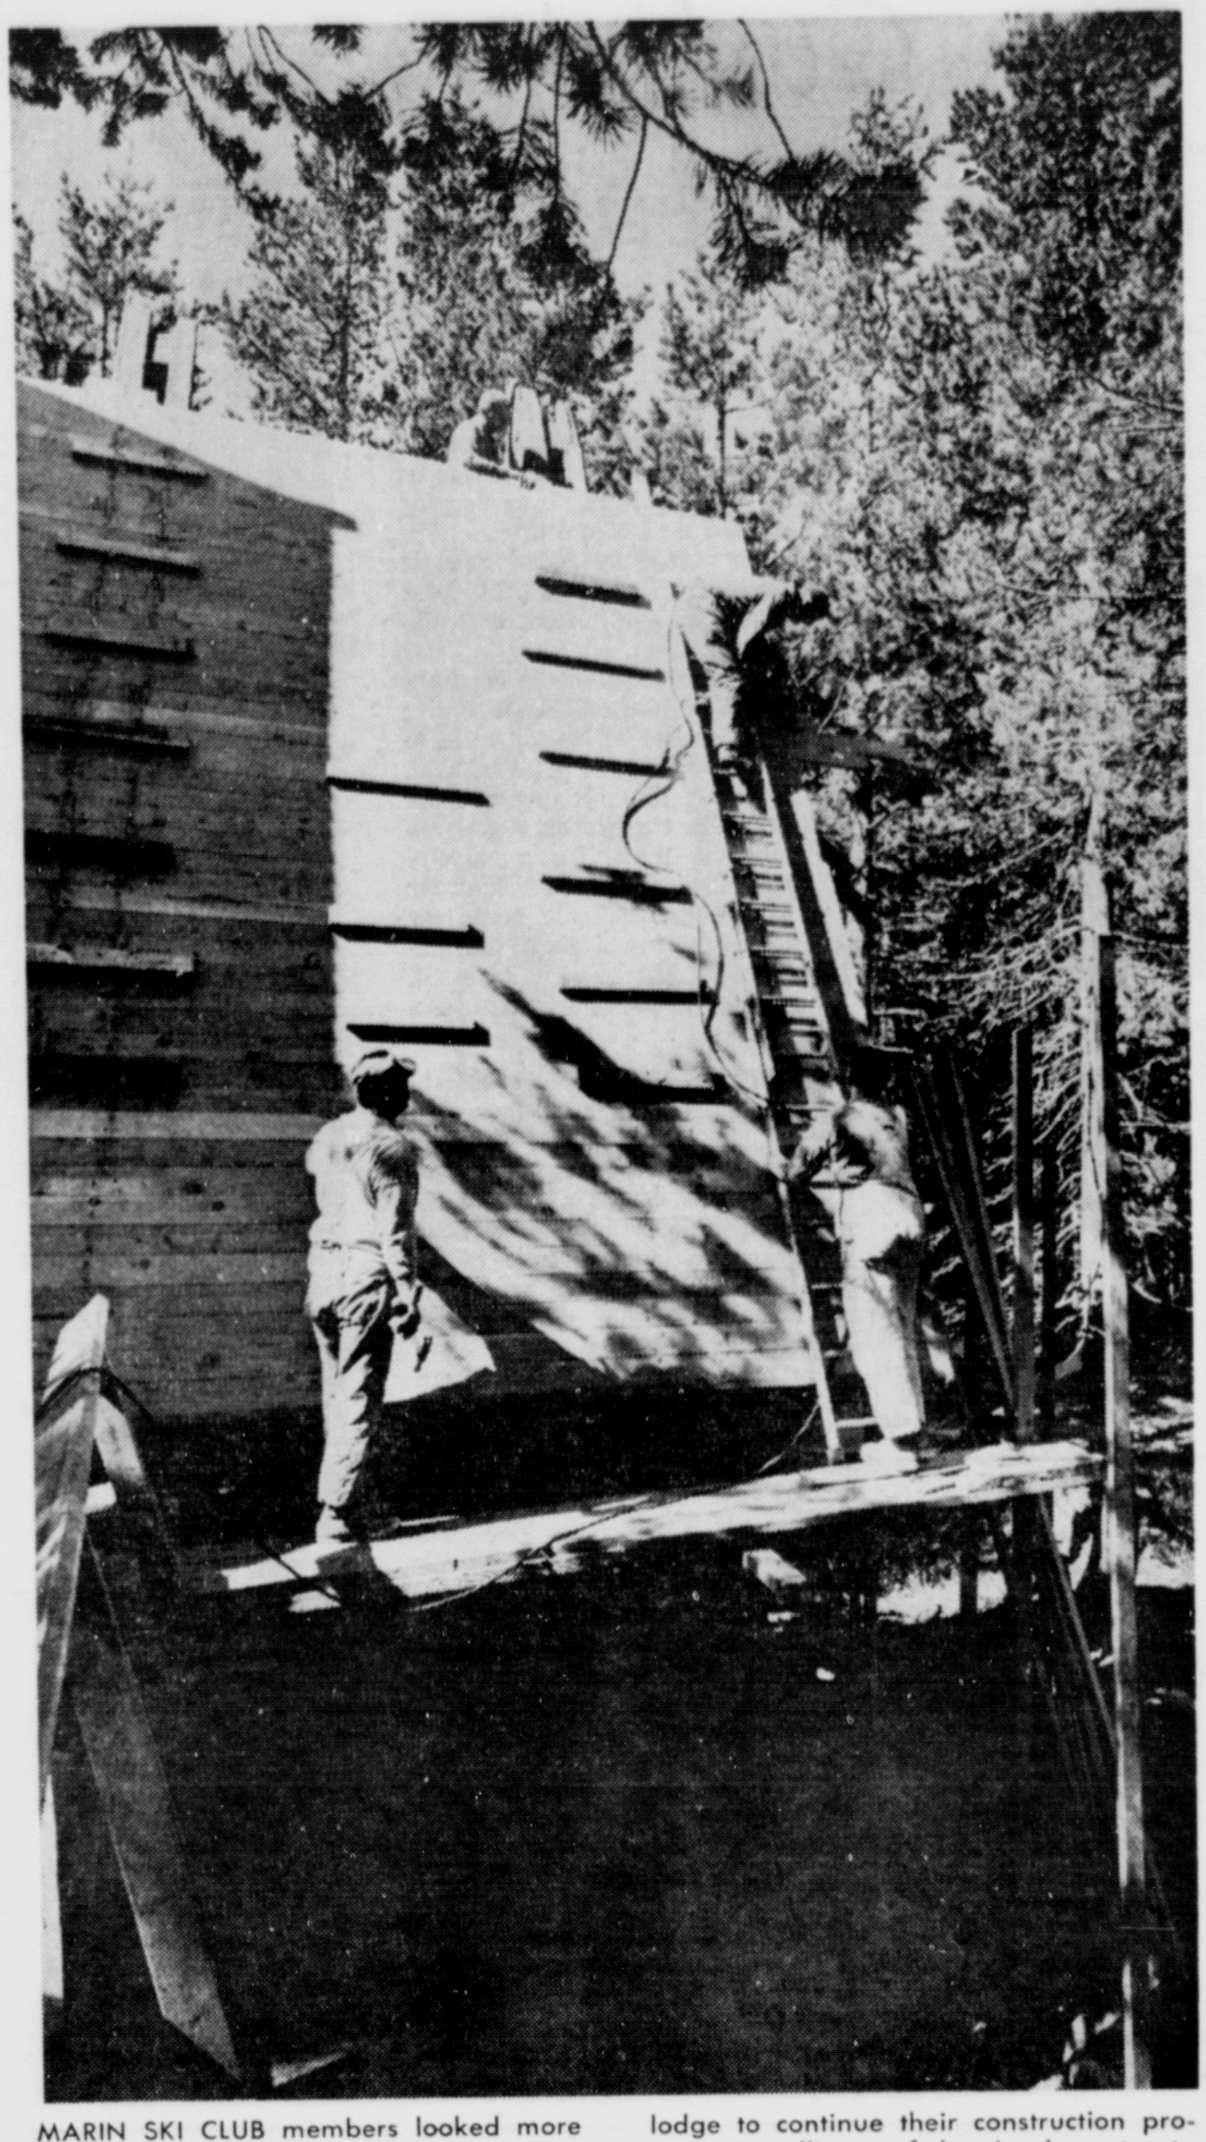
SCAFFOLDING GOES UP as a weekend work crew of Marin Ski Club members toil away in the building of their new lodge at Soda Springs. Here you are looking out from inside the new lounge and recreation A-frame that was virtually completed this summer. Finishing touches are scheduled for next summer to wind up the construction project.

SCOTT WATTERWORTH, a past president of the Marin Ski Club, pounds away as he shingles the living or lounging section of the ski lodge just off Highway 40. Ski club members are donating the labor for the now nearly completed project. However, materials have to be purchased. It is to help pay those costs that the club is sponsoring two showings of the film, "Snow Motion," at the Sequoia Theater in Mill Valley Tuesday night. (Photos by Jim Kean)



MARIN SKI CLUB members looked more like mountain climbers than skiers at times this summer as they "scaled" the high peaked roof of their double A-frame lodge to continue their construction program. Installing roof sheeting here, top to bottom, are volunteers Bob Dixon, Lin MacNeil, Harold Vogle and Frank Gifford.

"Should My Pile-Lined Jacket Be Drycleaned?"

Even though your jacket is labeled "w a s h and wear" it can be cleaned more satisfactorily by a professional. The lining of your jacket is soft, warm Dynel pile. If steam or hot pressing is applied to it, the Dynel will melt into a hard tangled mess which can never be restored to its original fluffiness.

Your jacket's exterior is corduroy. However, others have a soft shell exterior or a poplin or hard finish. Your drycleaner can remove deep-set wrinkles in hard finishes or re-nap the soft finishes to their original beauty. When the collar, cuffs or jacket bottoms are knit, your professional cleaner knows how to shrink these areas to restore their snugness. He has the facilities to fluff the Dynel lining, too.

By all means, have your jacket expertly cleaned. Although labeled "w a s h and wear" your jacket will be vastly improved by professional care.

'Shy Guy' At The Museum

Sweetie, the Arctic fox, is an introvert surrounded by extroverts.

At the Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum in San Rafael, Sweetie's neighbors include such grandstanding show-offs as Easter the seal, Ziggy the chimp, Teddy the bear and Shojie the monkey.

They're a bunch of cut-ups.

The museum added Sweetie to its small menagerie this past spring as a gift from a Peninsula resident.

He had acquired the fox from a Midwestern wholesale dealer in pets. And he had intended to keep Sweetie as a pet. He found, however, that his dog and the fox were too jealous of one another to make for a tranquil household. He began looking for a new and suitable home for Sweetie, learned about the museum in Marin with its small menagerie and made the presentation.

WHILE SHY, Sweetie has, to all indications, been happy in his San Rafael home. There is none of that restless pacing of the caged coyote who once resided in the museum. Sweetie generally tries to take things easy and to snub next-door-neighbor Shojie, the irrepressible Capuchin.

While hundreds of miles from his native haunts, Sweetie, nevertheless, goes through the usual change of coats of the Arctic fox. Right now he is wearing his winter fur — thick and white for warmth and camouflage in the snow.

In summer, the coat becomes gray and thinner.

His diet includes chicken necks, vegetables, fruit. Fruit is a favored delicacy.

ONLY ON extremely warm days does Sweetie seem to suffer from her unnatural environment. Then, along with the other heavily furred animals, he becomes uncomfortable. The use of ice blocks soon relieve his discomfort.

Sweetie's health has been good since his arrival at the museum, according to Mrs. Willis Evans, manager of the Boyd Museum, and he has posed no special problems in that respect. Or for that matter, in any other way. His conduct has been exemplary.

But like any descendant of animals that roamed the wilds, he'd be happier in roomier, fresh air quarters.

THOSE QUARTERS he'll be getting soon as part of a Boyd Museum capital improvement program that includes the construction of new facilities for its animals. The program is under the overall supervision of Dr. Earl Herald of the California Academy of Sciences in San Francisco. And the new construction is to be of the "modular" type, so that the pens can be taken along when the museum makes it move in some future year to the new Marin Civic Center site at Santa Venetia.

One of the major fund-raising events held annually to help meet the needs of Sweetie and his friends, along with other Boyd Museum costs and projects, is the annual fund-raising boutique, the Marin Merry-Go-Round, conducted by the women of the Boyd Museum guilds.

The museum guild women hope to make their colorful ba-

IN HIS WHITE winter coat, Sweetie the Arctic Fox is a beguiling picture. The little fox is a timid but contented resident of the Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum in San Rafael's Albert Park. But he'll be even happier with the construction of new facilities that will provide him with outdoor quarters. At present, he's inside, and visitors peer through glass at him and the other animals. The boutique or bazaar, the Merry-Go-Round, to be staged next week, Thursday through Saturday, at the old Pacific Gas and Electric Co. building at Second and Brooks, San Rafael, by the museum guilds, will help raise funds for Boyd Museum projects that include new quarters for the menagerie animals. Clusters On The Hillsides

"Cluster development," a major new trend in community planning, was introduced into Marin County back in 1959 to mark the origin of this unique pattern of living in the Bay Area.

This introduction of cluster development, which has been adopted by the American Conservation Assn. as its recommended method of community growth in the country, was the work of Kurt Heath, Marin County developer, and his Heath Land Co. of Mill Valley.

THE NEW cluster residential area was called Marinero, and it is located in Tiburon east of Tiburon Boulevard, overlooking both San Francisco and Richardson Bays. Although other cluster areas had been developed on level land in other sections of the country, Marinero was hailed as the first cluster development on hilly terrain.

Often conservationists and developers are at each other's throats about the use of land. But in Marinero, Heath feels he has blended the best ideas of each group.

Cluster development has been defined as "community planning that allocates green belts of parks or recreation areas around a cluster of housing, either single family or multiple units." It is an old idea, going back to medieval days, in fact, when people lived closely together, with large open spaces surrounding them as a protection against unfriendly neighbors.

IN THE late 1950s, when "urban sprawl" threatened to eliminate all potential park and recreation land near metropolitan areas, the concept of cluster development was presented as the answer to this problem.

Kurt Heath was enthusiastic about this modern method of community planning, and he decided, when the Heath Land Co. began to develop Marinero, that here was his opportunity to try it. He also was told that he could not develop this hilly property with the splendid views of the Bay and San Francisco because he would lose too much of the land due to gullies, cliffs and rapidly rising hills.

But Heath utilized cluster development principles when Marinero was laid out. He set aside land for parks or recreation throughout the area, and when he was finished he had homes on good building sites with unusual views plus nearby greenbelts.

AS RECOMMENDED by the American Conservation Assn., these park areas are to be owned by a district as a trustee for the residents of Marinero. The area includes both single family homes and apartments, and the parks and recreational sites are available to all residents.

Heath noted that many developers of hilly terrain used the best slopes for their roads, and placed the homes and surrounding living areas on the steepest land. In Marinero, the roads were laid out on the steeper hills, and this released the more level land for homes and outdoor living.

"We use the automobile to climb from one grade to an-

THIS DRAWING shows the cluster development plan as applied to Marinero's hills. Homes are clustered around cul-de-sacs on the more level areas, and surrounded by parks and recreation sites. Roads climb the steeper terrain to link the clusters of homes.

other, and then we place our homes at the various levels," Heath noted. "It doesn't sound like much now, but when we first did it in 1959, it was quite an innovation."

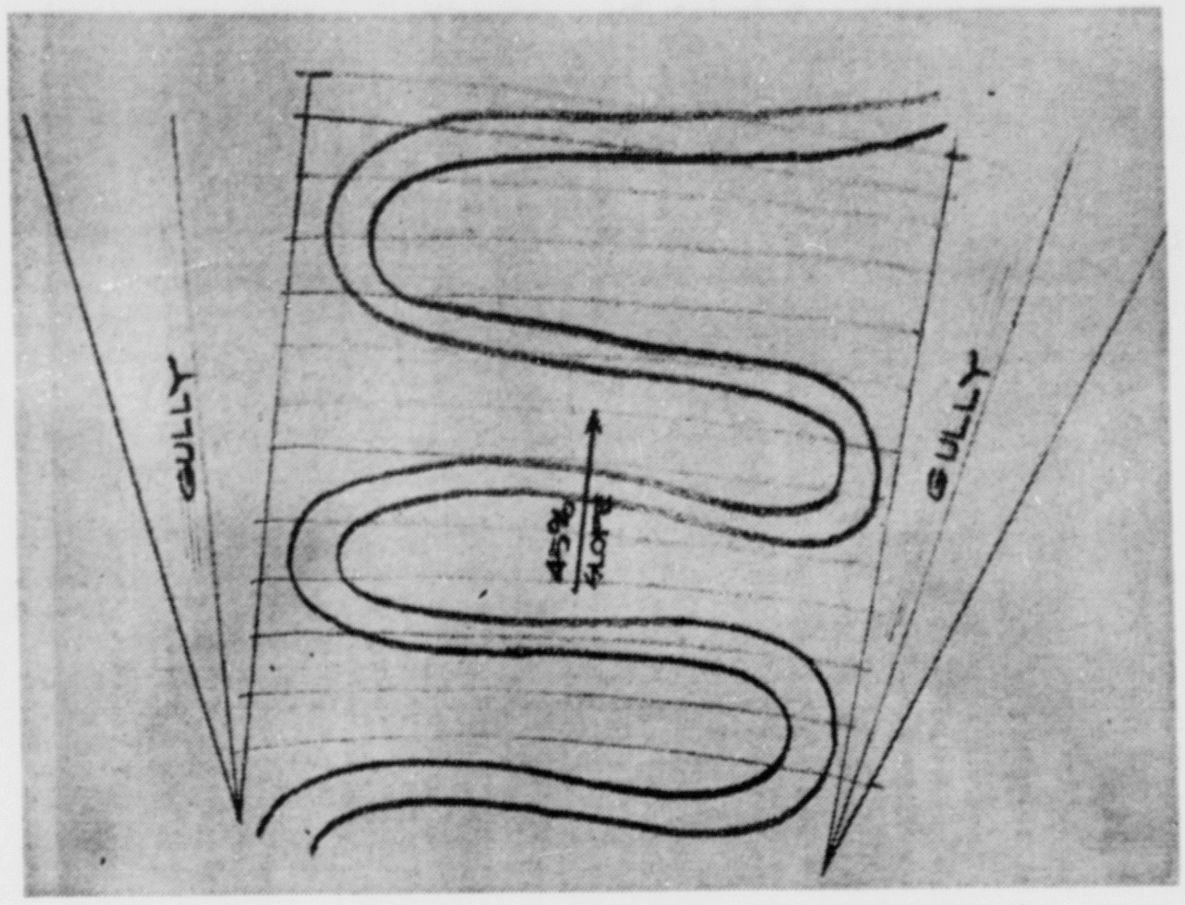
"GOVERNOR Brown is most interested in this concept," Heath added, "because of the future growth of the state. He told me California was going to have to learn to develop its hills properly because we couldn't afford to use up much more of our level crop-producing areas, and he indicated Marinero-type developments might solve some of these problems."

Heath has also originated a new method of placing roads in a hillside area, and he has called it the "Herringbone Turn."

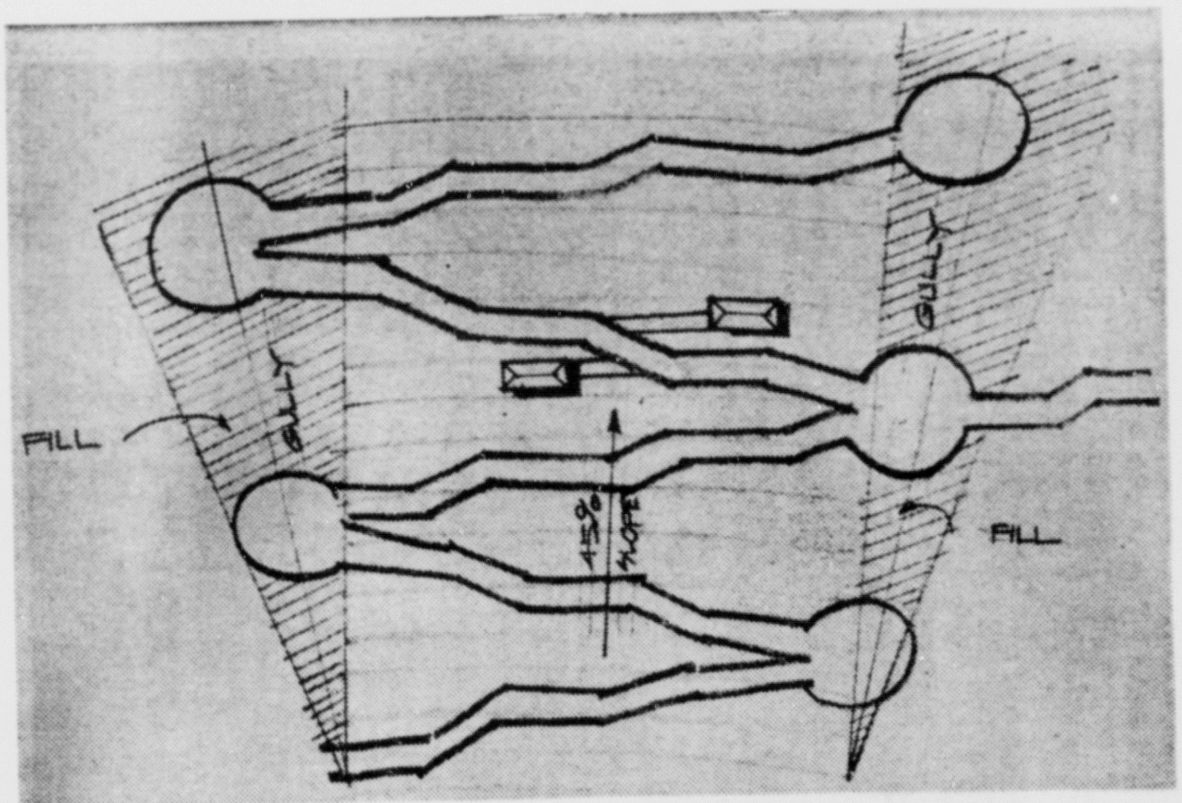
The conventional method of constructing a road up a hill or through a gully is by using hairpin turns and following the natural hilly terrain.

The objections to this method are obvious.

The drive up or down steep hairpin roads is not an easy one, and the lack of level areas to leave the road and reach a homesite is a serious problem for the home owners.



THE CONVENTIONAL road plan for development of hillside lots looks like this. The roadway is routed along the natural flow of the terrain, avoiding the steepest areas, and posing a series of hairpin turns for the motorist to navigate.



THE HERRINGBONE PLAN worked out by Kurt Heath for Marinero provides for level turn-arounds at opposite ends of gullies. Level stretches of roadway alternate with steep stretches. Hairpin turns are eliminated, and the home owner can enter his property via a fairly level driveway.

THE NEW "Herringbone Turn" eliminates the hairpin turn for slopes from 25 per cent up to slopes of about 45 per cent.

The new technique was developed by benching level areas at each side of the gully, and linking the road from one level to a higher level area on the other side, in a type of herringbone effect.

The "Herringbone Turn" is feasible because of modern earth-moving equipment which can take dirt out of one area and move it into another. By moving dirt into the gully you can tailor this fill into a design to fit the contours of the land, and thereby develop a level turn for an uphill roadway.

THE ORIGINAL drainage of the steep area can be maintained by inserting culverts to follow the normal flow of water underneath the dirt which is moved into the gully.

The road begins at the base and climbs to a level "turnabout" at one side of the slope. At this point the car can change directions easily and head up the slope to another level turnabout at the other side of the slope.

The roads linking each turnabout can be as steep or as near-level as desired, and can be altered to fit the contours of the land for home sites.

Another asset of this type of roadway is that at the level turnabout, instead of doubling back up the hill, the road can also be extended to another "Herringbone Turn" roadway in the adjacent gully.

THIS NEW method has two major advantages: It would reduce the amount of cut into a hill for roads, and the gully would provide areas into which to move the fill which is taken from a hill, areas adjacent to the cut which would be more economical than hauling the dirt away.

It is with such new ideas that Kurt Heath is changing the pattern of living for the residents of Marinero, and paving the way for American Conservation Assn.-approved methods of hillside development.

FIRST THROUGH THE United Kingdom and Ireland, then later through continental Europe and down into the Mediterranean and Aegean Seas, Othello and Louise Michetti of San Anselmo traveled for 18 months while he sketched and painted. It was their second such tour in the 1960s. This thatched roof cottage was painted in Southern Ireland. In Northern Ireland, he explains the thatched roof would have to be reinforced with wire to hold against the gales that blow there. (Photo by Mack's Photo Service)

An Artist's Tour Of Europe

By DON KEOWN

When Mr. and Mrs. Othello Michetti of 100 Sycamore, San Anselmo, tour Europe, like any other tourists they take along a camera.

But it is used infrequently. And after they return, the film is brought out only to show to guests.

For the Michettis have something better with which to refresh their own memories of the scenic beauty they have visited and admired.

MICHETTI, 68, is an artist. And wherever he goes, he takes along his brushes, watercolors and sketch pads.

Italian born, Michetti served as art director for the Stecher-Traung Lithograph Corp. of San Francisco until 1960 when he retired. A United States resident since 1906 and a Californian since 1921, he had studied at the Art Students League of New York City before coming West.

In this state, he established himself as a painter in watercolors and casein, exhibiting frequently, winning many awards, lecturing, teaching and serving on art juries. He has been active in the Marin Society of Artists.

HIS PASSION has always been for outdoor painting, and thus he traveled extensively through the western United States and Mexico doing landscapes.

After his retirement, he and Mrs. Michetti were able to extend their journeys.

In 1961-62, they spent 18 months in the United Kingdom, Ireland and the European continent, returning with scores of paintings and sketches.

After a five-month stay in Marin, they went back across the Atlantic for another 18 months. After touring England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland, they traveled down through France and Italy to wind up their visit with a month and a half in Greece and the Greek islands.

THEIR RETURN to California was made in August, and this time Michetti brought with him some 300 drawings and paintings. "My diary," he calls them.

Since then, he has been retouching and selecting sketches and paintings for exhibition.

On Monday, a showing of 130 of his paintings completed during his last tour of Europe will open at the Torrance Art Gallery in San Anselmo. A reception honoring the artist will be held at the gallery next Friday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Michetti says his approach to sketching and painting while traveling is unusual.

"I KNEW that we would be encountering inclement weather, so I prepared by selecting only the smallest equipment," he says. Thus for the most part, Michetti's sketches and watercolors were done on small sketch pads.

As a result, about 95 per cent of Michetti's work was accomplished while sitting inside his

IN HIS STUDIO in his home at 100 Sycamore, San Anselmo, artist Othello Michetti does a bit of retouching to one of the watercolors he brought back from the 18-month tour he and his wife, Louise, recently completed in Great Britain and Europe. One hundred and thirty of the 300 sketches and paintings that Michetti did while on the trip will be on exhibit at the Torrance Gallery in San Anselmo in a show that opens Monday and continues through December. THIS BIT OF IRISH countryside was painted by Othello Michetti of San Anselmo at Malin Head in Free Ireland's northernmost point. "It is bleak, rocky, sparsely-populated country," the artist says. "Fierce country — but gentle people."

THE QUIET VILLAGE of Castle Combe in Cotswold, southwestern England, was painted by Othello Michetti when he and his wife stayed there overnight. Castle Combe was named "the most beautiful village in England" in 1963, and, says Michetti, with good reason. "It is wonderfully picturesque," says the artist.

THE STEPPED STREETS of the Sicilian village of Francaviila attracted the interest of Othello Michetti. "They are very much like some of the stepped sidewalks of San Francisco — but not as steep," he says.

car in view of the scenery he wished to capture.

"I would say that a good quarter of the time, I was using the windshield wipers," he says. "But rain or shine, I could paint."

THIS APPROACH also simplified his problem of transporting his finished paintings.

"Actually I filled 12 pads of 20 pages each," he says. "The rest were on separate sheets of watercolor paper. And the whole output did not pose any serious travel problem."

What country was his favorite?

"Every country has its own source of beauty," he says, "but England and Scotland are so picturesque it is incredible. Most Americans have no idea how beautiful the British villages can be."

MICHETTI has this advice for American tourists in search of such beauty: "Avoid the large industrial cities."

"Of course," he adds, "London and Edinburgh are something else. So are cities like Venice and Rome. There is much to see and admire there. But the big industrial centers can only spoil your trip."

The Michettis have already planned their next trip.

THEY HAVE booked passage for next April on the Golden Bear, to sail to the Orient. There they will visit Japan, Hong Kong and other points of interest.

"And very possibly," Michetti says, "we will return by way of Europe instead of coming back across the Pacific."

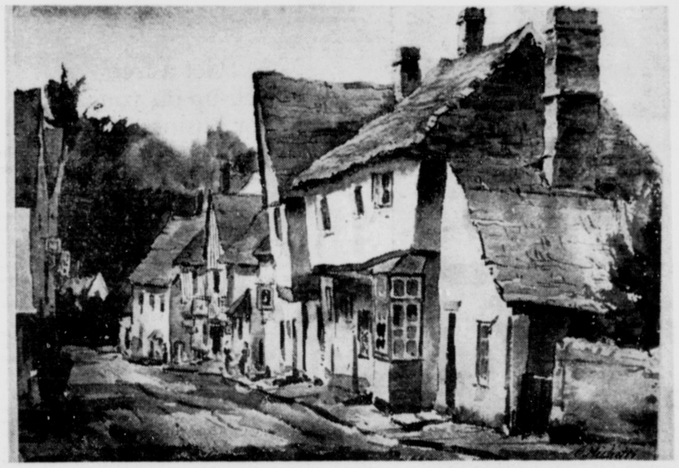
And, almost as an afterthought, the camera.



THE TOWN OF KERSEY in England's Suffolk captured the imagination and stimulated the creative urges of Othello Michetti. "Suffolk has some of the most beautiful little villages I have ever seen," the San Anselmo painter declares.

THE DISTINCTIVE architecture of these houses in Puglie of Southern Italy have long puzzled historians. They are found only within a 10-mile radius of Puglie. Othello Michetti favors the theory that the building style was brought to Italy by Albanians fleeing Turkish persecution in the 14th century.

THIS LITTLE TOWN of Beddgelert nestled in Wales' rugged terrain is beloved by the British because it is the scene of one of their favorite legends from the Middle Ages — the dog that saved the life of a child by slaying a wolf, but was then killed by his master because of a tragic misunderstanding.

THE MICHETTIS ENDED their tour of Great Britain, Ireland and the European continent with nine days on the Aegean Sea island of Mykonos, about 200 miles from Athens. Michetti sketched this scene in that island's lone village. It is, he says, "an artist's paradise."

THE RUINS OF an old Greek-Roman theater were painted by Othello Michetti at Taormina in Sicily. The Michettis spent most of last winter at the popular resort.

Germany Analyzed

THE BURDEN OF GUILT by Hannah Vogt (translated by Herbert Strauss), Oxford University Press, 288 pages, $6. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Hannah Vogt's "The Burden of Guilt" is sub-titled "A Short History of Germany, 1914-1945."

It was published in West Germany—where it is widely used in the schools—under the title "Schuld oder Verhangnis?" which translates roughly as "Fault or Fate?"

Miss Vogt's book is more than a history of Germany through the two world wars—for both of which the Reich was blamed. It is an attempt to analyze why the Germany beaten in the first world war insisted on starting the second, and beyond that, why the German people not only permitted Hitler to take away their new freedom, but supported him quite wholeheartedly for doing it.

Kaiser Wilhelm II's Germany was drawn into the first world war without intention, Miss Vogt holds. But Adolf Hitler insisted on the second even after being granted what he had claimed were his "last territorial demands."

Germans, holds the author, simply did not understand that the democracy that was handed them after the Kaiser abdicated involved responsibility of the citizens. The people abdicated their responsibility. The parliament, always splintered by too many parties, finally abdicated also. Thus Hitler, who believed in nothing but force, became dictator with little opposition.

"The Burden of Guilt" is a penetrating work, and worth reading by Americans not only as a history of events that still shape the world but also as a lesson in our own responsibilities toward democracy.

Yellow Wealth

GOLD! by Gina Allen, Thomas Y. Crowell Co., 275 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Richard Lyttle.

If you want a capsule history of the world and do not mind if it has a slightly limited viewpoint, this book is the answer.

The author develops her history around gold and its influence on man. Actually it does not seem too limiting.

It seems that gold has been at the bottom of just about every major effort of mankind.

Mrs. Allen has done a fine job of research and she sets down her story in a clear, expository style.

The single viewpoint makes her story move along without involved digressions, often the bane of the academic historian.

Two Families

FIRST PAPERS by Laura Z. Hobson, Random House, 503 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

The author of "Gentlemen's Agreement" has written a new novel about two American families, one New England-born, the other Russian immigrant, who find themselves leading the battles for social reform and the upholders of civil liberties challenged by World War I.

The strength of the parents against the pressures of the New York environment in these years of rapid social change and their efforts to rear their children in what they regard the "American way"—standing up for their liberties rather than bowing and blending with the popular attitudes of the day—is Mrs. Hobson's theme. And she has produced a story that is meaningful in these times as well.

Our Dilemma

WHITE TEACHER IN A BLACK SCHOOL by Robert Kendall, Devin-Adair, 224 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by D. W. Bradley.

This dialogue of his two enraged high school students greets the new teacher on his first day. The tone of hate is set.

Kendall senses that he is the scapegoat of his colored pupils' hatred of all whites. He comforts the unwed child-mother forced into prostitution by an alcoholic father. The teacher's visits to students' homes reveal nobility and wretchedness and underline the frustration of these deprived.

Study, graduate? What's the use?

The white teacher enjoys few rewards in a valiant effort to salvage human beings. In wringing productive responses from deprived children his occasional victories over hate are frequently canceled by supervisors of singular transigence. And the effort to encourage pupils to dig, to understand is abridged by the school policy to push students through—ready or not.

Ghetto dialogue and violence pace the work. Courage and ugliness are juxtaposed.

Robert Kendall may be called a purveyor of the sensational if we are to label our dreadful dilemma a fiction—in the hope that it will go away.

Clash Of Values

THE REBELLION OF YALE MARRATT by Robert H. Rimmer, Challenge Press, 529 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Jean H. Lyttle.

Written by the author in the belief that in the coming decade American authors must increasingly emphasize positive values, the plot gets off to a good start with the hero, Yale Marratt, pictured as an idealistic college boy who refuses to buckle under to the materialistic interests of his dynamic father.

Thwarted by his father in a love affair, Yale is sent to India in the army and there meets and marries a young war widow working for the Red Cross.

All goes well until he is sent home. Things move along swiftly now, and we find Yale also married to his first love so that he is a bigamist who lives in splendor (he has become a millionaire financial genius) with two beautiful wives.

Yale, of course, settles in his hometown. Here he shocks his father into a heart attack, by throwing nude parties around his swimming pool. Bedroom scenes abound and along about the last half of all these doings the reviewer loses her belief in any positive values to be found here. It seems to become just another myopic portrayal of Western man as a decadent creature.

German General

DUEL FOR KILIMANJARO by Leonard Mosley, Ballantine Books, 224 pages, 60 cents. Reviewed by Richard Lyttle.

This paperback reprint tells the remarkable story Gen. Paul von Lettow-Vorbeck who led a troop of Africans and Europeans against the British and Portugese in the 1914-18 campaign in German East Africa.

Lettow-Vorbeck's aim was to divert troops from the Western Front to East Africa. This he did with marked success despite the odds of enemy troops, rough terrain and climate against him. Lettow-Vorbeck made his knowledge of Africa work in his favor and let the unhealthy climate take its steady toll of the enemy.

Sleuths & Suspense

BODIES AND SPIRITS edited by Dan Herr and Joel Wells, Crime Club, 192 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The creating and maintaining of an eerie atmosphere can, in this sophisticated age, be one of the most difficult tests faced by the short story writer.

But there are those who have mastered the frightening art, and Dan Herr and Joel Wells have included some of the best in this anthology of "13 tales of the struggle between good and evil, man and spirit, God and the Devil."

The skein that holds the collection together is the Roman Catholic thread that runs through all the yarns.

Sometimes it's the characters or a character, sometimes the setting, sometimes a Roman Catholic religious practice or belief.

Top honors, in our opinion, must go to H. P. Lovecraft whose "The Haunter of the Dark" is a magnificent example of its species. F. Marion Crawford's "For the Blood Is the Life" is a close second. One story is non-fiction. It is John Godwin's account of the now familiar incident in which the late Homer Cummings jeopardized his future as district attorney to see that justice was accorded a friendless murder suspect.

There are a few stories of inferior caliber, but the anthology includes a good $3.50 worth of shivers and tingles.

The Convict Who Was Rehabilitated

By DON KEOWN

Does the new approach to penology, stressing rehabilitation rather than punishment, really work?

Well, in the case of Wilber Power Sewell, now known as Bill Sands, it succeeded almost miraculously.

Sands entered San Quentin Prison in July of 1941 faced with two life sentences for armed robbery, a rebellious and embittered youth. He left the prison in October of 1943 on parole, a changed man, determined to adjust to society and never to return.

And the man responsible for that transformation, Sands says in his biography, "My Shadow Ran Fast," was Clinton T. Duffy, then warden of San Quentin.

Sands' admiration for the enlightened penologist borders on worship. The offspring of well-to-do and influential parents, Billy Sewell was nevertheless denied love as a child by a sadistic and selfish mother and by a father who knew not how to express his affection for his son. Sewell found in Duffy the person-who-cared, the inspiration that had been missing from his life.

Outside of prison, Sands entered into an adventurous life in his quest for personal satisfaction. Automobile and motorcyle racing driver, airplane pilot, dance teacher and studio owner, diamond miner, swimming and water polo coach in India, South American airport and hotel manager, merchant seaman, business executive, professional boxer, nightclub entertainer, longshoreman, electrician, superintendent of public works for the very county that had once sent him to prison, construction clerk and water show impressario in Arabia—those were only a few of the fast-moving Sands' many activities. But none gave him the satisfaction he was seeking.

That came when he turned, full-time, to work on behalf of prison reform, convict rehabilitation and the prevention of juvenile delinquency. His book is part of that campaign.

Sands has written an interesting—and important—book. For one thing, it is a most effective answer to those who criticize and belittle the modern approach to penology as exemplified by Duffy. It is an eye-opener, too, as to what prison life is truly like. And it is a case history of one man's redemption that society might well use as a pattern to be applied to others.

A sidelight to the mainstream of Sands' story are his comments upon his San Quentin cellmate Caryl Chessman. He asserts categorically Chessman's innocence of the crimes for which he was executed. The Chessman he knew so intimately, he says, was simply incapable of committing acts of sexual deviation.

And relying heavily upon the observations of Los Angeles Examiner reporter Eleanor Garner Black, who was among those closest to Chessman in his torturous last years and who was to become Mrs. Sands, he maintains that Chessman went to the gas chamber a fully rehabilitated man who had conquered the criminal inclinations of his earlier years.

MY SHADOW RAN FAST by Bill Sands, Prentice-Hall, 212 pages, $4.95.

FISH AND FISHING by Maynard Reece, Meredith Press, 224 eight-by-11-inch pages, $7.95.

AN EXCELLENT selection as a Christmas gift for the sportsman is "Fish and Fishing," a handsome Better Homes and Gardens Book written and illustrated by Maynard Reece.

The profusion of illustrations, many of them in striking colors, includes pictures of 80 species of North American freshwater game fish. There are also photos of baits, flies, lures and knots, of fishermen enjoying their favorite sport, and of demonstrations of good angling techniques. A colored map pinpoints the locations of the various fish.

The technical discussion concentrates on such basics as the baiting of the hook, casting and cleaning of the catch. There are also recipes for freshwater fish dishes. Seven vacation trips for fishing families—with transportation ranging from the canoe to the airplane—are outlined.

All in all, it's a manual that will be treasured by any dedicated disciple of Isaac Walton, but particularly by the sportsman who wishes to interest and indoctrinate his family in the finer points of fishing.

IN VEST pocket size and soft-cover format, Random House has published "Great Events of World History" with a chronological listings of the most significant happenings from earliest recorded time to the present, plus such extras from a timetable of the earth, man's "prehistory," a compilation of important inventions and an inventory of the great documents of history. And all for $1.25.

Stereo Hi-Fi

By. C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

Generally, when shopping for a stereo console for the home, the selection proceeds by looking over the various pieces of furniture that houses the stereo equipment. In other words, a selection of cabinetry is the starting point for the investigation. Naturally, the buyer listens to the sound and finds out the price. If the sound is good and the cost is in the buyer's price range, the selection is finalized. The entire purchase was basically influenced by the appearance of the cabinet.

When shopping for a component stereo system, the emphasis is placed on the electronic parts that make up the home music system rather than the cabinet, the cabinet being treated as an additional item or component. For many years, we have been searching for a manufacturer that is able to combine beautiful furniture with quality sound components, at prices that people can afford.

ELECTROHOME, Canada's largest engineering laboratory dedicated exclusively to stereo hi-fi and television, meets the stringent requirements demanded by us in the component business; therefore, we have just recently become a franchised dealer for Electrohome. Within a few days we expect to have on display the superbly styled Electrohome consoles.

These stereo hi-fi consoles include a host of features. The control panels are beautifully simple and easy to operate, yet provide a complete range of functions. The Electrohome consoles use Jensen speakers, as we do in some of our custom consoles. The consoles come equipped with Garard or Dual changers as are used in most of our custom consoles. The cabinets are handrubbed to perfection, and protected for a lifetime by an exclusive Duradeil process that consists of seven distinct and separate finishes. Duradeil is highly resistant to heat, spills, and scuffs. You can actually put a cigarette out on the furniture finish without marring the cabinet. Each stereo hi-fi console comes with a 12 month warranty. The lift-up tops have a Torsion Touch lid which, when lightly touched, swings gently open. Most models are fully transistorized and include AM, Stereo FM, and stereo phono. Complete systems will range from as low as $299.00 on up. At last we have beautiful systems with breathtaking sound at prices that anyone can afford.

THE STEREO SCENE

New Recordings By 'Pop Jazz' Artists

By JOHN SUNIER
Program Manager, KBRG

Some new records in the "pop jazz" field:

IT'S ALL RIGHT! — Wyton Kelly Trio with Kenny Burrell, guitar and Candido, conga drums —Verve Stereo V6-8588:

As the national and international interest in genuine jazz grows by leaps and bounds, there seems to be a growing impatience among some jazzmen to reach an even wider audience right now—by making their music more commercial and palatable.

It is not easy for a jazz artist to create anything worthwhile in the middle of an orchestra of strings or Ooooo-singing mixed choruses a la Ray Coniff. George Shearing was probably one of the first to hit the dust under this type of "pop jazz" arrangements; Stan Getz's "Reflections" LP was a more recent example.

Pianist Wyton Kelly has added only two items to his usual group: A guitarist and a Latin drummer. From his swinging solos he has distilled the very best, the very most melodic and the most direct rhythmic devices. The result is "All Right!" in every way.

"Fall of Love" brings in a steel band with unusual effect, and an unusual choice for theme material is Grofe's "On the Trail."

WARM WAVE—Cal Tjader—Arranged and conducted by Claus Ogerman — Verve Stereo V6-8585:

Tjader's first LP of Orientally-flavored pop jazz, "Several Shades of Jade," is a real kick. His second volume in this genre was sickeningly commercial, and this third attempt is a bore.

Not that the A & R people didn't try---they threw in an 18-piece string orchestra, bossa nova rhythm section, and even a vocal group that sounds like part of The Double Six. To no avail—in the future, just give us Cal and his little combo, without all the trimmings.

THE CAT — The Incredible Jimmy Smith — Arranged and conducted by Lal Schifrin— Verve Stereo V6-8587:

This organist really comes on strong. His several Verve albums have all benefited from excellent arrangements and sidemen, and a choice of tunes that are particularly well-suited to Smith's swinging and funky style.

The title tune here as well as another theme are from the Alain Delon film "Joy House." The main title from the film "The Carpetbaggers" reminds one strongly of the "Walk On the Wild Side" hit Jimmy racked up a year or two ago — and no wonder, for it is also by Elmer Bernstein.

With a sound as big as this, stereo is vital to the full effect of the music.

FALL PIECES

Outward turns inward.
Summer insects flit at half-speed
In dire expectation.
Afternoon sunbeams have icy edges.
The long-fingered steel rake
Noisily beckons to crisp fallen leaves.

Continuity Is Key In Decorating The 'Open Plan' Home

WANT A TIP on decorating an open plan home? Achieve harmony by repeating materials. Living and dining rooms here have same carpeting and walls of flat grain hemlock panel boards installed horizontally. Ceilings also are hemlock, but room individuality is created with skylighted gambrel over living room, flat ceiling in dining area.

An open area plan home makes delightful living, but it's a challenge to decorate. Instead of working with only one room at a time, there can be as many as three or four to cope with at once.

The most important basic to remember is to carry principal design elements throughout the area, repeating them at least once per room for continuity. This applies particularly to walls, window treatments and floor covering.

A second point to remember is that the eye wanders readily from one room to another in an open plan. Color schemes must coordinate comfortably. Principal colors can differ with accents repeated, or a principal color in one room can become the main accent in another.

RULES ARE meant to be broken, but a smart gal won't try to mesh an orange-gold dining room with a blue-green-purple living room.

Walls in an open area present a bug-a-boo. Here, overwhelming pattern and demanding color are the ever-present dangers. Good decorators will usually choose one material for an accent and repeat it room to room, backing it up with neutrals for other wall surfaces.

Wood paneling, for example, is often chosen for open area plans because it contributes needed warmth and texture. It can lie on one or two walls of the living room, repeat for another large wall surface in dining room and carry into the entrance hall.

FLOORS ARE another problem area.

Wall-to-wall carpeting is the easiest way to achieve harmony, and is often the best choice. But when fine wood floors exist, area rugs may be used with great success if color and pattern are coordinated. Carpeting and hard surfaces may also be combined, provided only one type of hard-surface flooring is used in the home.

Room individuality in an open area plan is automatically assured through differences in furniture, but ceilings can also be brought into play to create distinctions if desired.

For example, the intimacy of a flat ceiling over the dining room can contrast with a gambrel roof over the living room. Or the ceiling of one room could be paneled to match walls, using painted ceilings in other rooms.

CORRECTION

The story incorrectly credited the construction of the home to Price Building Specialties of San Francisco.

AN OUTDOOR Christmas card is one of the best ways to spread holiday cheer from your family to passers-by. This one stands four feet tall and measures almost five feet across. Plywood, hardboard or other weatherproof panelboard is used for the card, while the colorful Madonna cutout can be made by painting the colors on a full-size pattern. Or, if you prefer, trace the pattern directly on the panelboard. There's also a full-size lettering guide so that you can add your name or additional messages. Send 75 cents to Independent-Journal, P. O. Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, and ask for Easi-Bild Christmas Card Pattern No. 540.

The California Holly Is A Useful Native

Blooms, Berries And Beauty– All From The Versatile Toyon

Of all the native plants which grace our Golden State, none has more practical value than the colorful Christmas Berry, more correctly known as California Holly.

Here is a tall shrub or small tree which fits readily into the garden setting. It has handsome green foliage, white spring bloom and bright red berries in late fall. The latter are ideal for decking the halls during the the holiday season.

There are many names by which you might find the California Christmas Berry.

BOTANISTS call it Heteromeles, while old friends know it as Toyon or California Holly.

By any name, however, it is still the same fine shrub that nurserymen rank with Ceanothus as one of our two most useful natives.

Heteromeles, the botanical name, associates it with the Strawberry Tree.

At any season, it is an evergreen mass of glossy green, saw-toothed leaves, some four inches long. These leaves make a rich background in the garden. They are spotted occasionally with bronzy tones and often with bright red leaves, which turn that way just before they drop off the shrub.

IN SPRING, the Christmas Berry is aglow with flowers. These are pink in the bud, white when they open. The blooms are borne in clusters which later become berries. In full bloom, the shrub is often completely covered with white flowers. They make a colorful display with the green leaves.

In fall come the berries, bushels of them, which make for wonderful decorations. One shrub will take care of all your berry needs with plenty to spare. The berries are a bright red, about the size of Pyracantha berries.

There are several uses for Christmas Berry in your garden.

Being dense in growth, it serves well as a screen for the property line. Left to its own, it will grow to 20 or more feet. Judicious pruning will keep it much lower, however.

THE CALIFORNIA Assn. of Nurserymen strongly recommends against clipping the Christmas Berry formally, for its beauty lies in the irregular undulating habit of growth.

You can also try Christmas Berry as a specimen tree or tall shrub at the edge of a patio or spotted in the shrub border. Try pruning it up to form a small tree, opening the framework of branches to admit light to highlight the already glossy nature of the leaves.

This rugged shrub is native to many areas of California, including the unfriendly, rocky islands off the coast. It is found in the Sierra foothills and in the coast range, indicating that it will thrive in virtually any California condition.

CERTAINLY it shares the typical native indifference to water, but at the same time it does not resent overwatering the way many native plants do.

Your nurseryman recommends that you plant Christmas Berry in any normal soil and don't make it struggle for a start in life. Reasonable water and even a shot of food at the start will give you berry size shrubs sooner than otherwise.

Nurseries have a good selection of Christmas Berries in stock now. Make a date to drop in and see them before the big rush starts.

The sooner you get your shrub in the ground, the sooner you will have berries for Christmas decoration.

You'll Appreciate The Herbs During The Holiday Season

With the holiday season approaching and lots of new and original cooking planned for the family and guests, wouldn't it be nice to have an herb garden right near the kitchen door? It's quite feasible.

You can buy most of the important varieties of herbs in bands or small pots. These can be set directly into the ground in a small area handy to the kitchen, or they may be planted in window boxes, tubs or pots.

THE MAIN requirements are that herbs be exposed to sunlight for more than half the day and the soil mixture be neutral and light in texture.

Don't despair if some of your herbs look off-beat during the winter, because several of the best go dormant at that time. Trim off the withered foliage and new growth will appear next spring.

Some of the most useful herbs serve a dual purpose in the garden. For example, Thyme and Camomile and Rosemary are among the leading ground cover varieties in California. Lavender is grown as an ornamental shrub, prized for its fragrant flowers. California Laurel (or Bay) makes a bold, tall shrub, useful for background planting and windbreak. Lemon Verbena is a tall shrub or small tree with aromatic foliage.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✔Prepare planting holes for soon-to-be planted roses, fruit trees, and other deciduous plants. Mix steer manure and bone meal in the soil.

TV Plans Tribute To JFK

NEW YORK—"The Burden and the Glory of John F. Kennedy," a CBS hour-long special dedicated to the memory of the late President and his quest for peace, will be presented Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. on KPIX-TV.

Participating in the broadcast, through off-screen narration, will be many of the cabinet officers, Presidental advisers and members of Congress who worked intimately with President Kennedy.

THEY INCLUDE Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Ambassador to the United Nations Adlai E. Stevenson, Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs Averell W. Harriman, and McGeorge Bundy, special assistant to the President for national security affairs.

Also Sen. and Vice President-elect Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, speaking as the Senate majority whip; Sen. Pierre Salinger of California, who was President Kennedy's press secretary; Theodore C. Sorenson, who served as special counsel to the President; Allen W. Dulles, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency; historian Arthur M. Schlesinger, who was one of Kennedy's presidental assistants; Dr. Jerome B. Wiesner of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who was President Kennedy's science adviser; Walt Whitman Rostow, State Department counselor and chairman of its Policy Planning Council, and Roger Hilsman, former assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs.

"The Burden and the Glory of John F. Kennedy" will examine the great events that occurred during Kennedy's tenure. It will be narrated, in part, in the words of John F. Kennedy himself, and of his associates.

IN ITS examination of the events of the Kennedy years, the broadcast will touch upon the President's Inaugural Address (Jan. 20, 1961); the Bay of Pigs incident and the President's subsequent speech before the American Society of Newspaper Editors (April 20, 1961); Kennedy's meeting with then Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in Vienna and his report to the nation upon his return (June 6, 1961); the Soviet and United States resumption of nuclear testing in 1961 and 1962; the President's speech before the General Assembly of the United Nations ("Let us call a truce to terror," Sept. 25, 1961); the Cuban missile crisis and Kennedy's speech to the nation on the Cuba quarantine (Oct. 22, 1962); the peace speech delivered at American University in Washington, D.C. (June 10, 1963); the announcement of the nuclear test ban treaty (July 26, 1963); and the foreign affairs speech delivered at the Salt Lake City Mormon Tabernacle (Sept. 26, 1963).

"The Burden and the Glory of John F. Kennedy" is produced by Arthur Barron. Associate producer is Beatrice Cunningham.

ROBERT GOULET
A one-hour special

Another Goulet Triumph

HOLLYWOOD — For a man who once played "Timber Tom" on TV's "Howdy Doody" show, Robert Goulet has come a long way.

He has starred as Sir Lancelot in Lerner - Loewe's Broadway musical hit, "Camelot," he has become a leading supper club attraction and television guest, he has made numerous hit recordings and he has starred in two movies.

Now he has his own TV special, "An Hour With Robert Goulet," to be telecast next Thursday at 10 p.m. on KPIX-TV and the CBS Television Network.

AN AMAZING thing about these impressive achievements is that they were all accomplished during the last three years.

Until 1961, when Goulet first soared into prominence in "Camelot," he was virtually an unknown in this country. He had, however, amassed a great personal following in Canada where he starred for three years in Canada's top television variety program, "Showtime," and was one of the leads in the famed annual Canadian stage satire, "Spring Thaw."

FOR HIS CBS Television special next Thursday, Goulet will have British comedian Terry-Thomas, French actress and dancer Leslie Caron, and dancer-choreographer Peter Gennaro as guest stars.

Produced by George Englund, directed by Clark Jones, "An Hour With Robert Goulet" is based on a day in the busy singer-actor's life. Portions of the broadcast, in keeping with the program's theme, were taped on location at such sites as the UCLA campus and the famed Hollywood Brown Derby restaurant.
